VOTING PLACES LOCATED AND OFFICERS SELECTED

It proved no trivial task for the Democratic County Central committee, that of drawing the voting precincts, locating the voting places, and selecting the election officers for the county primary election. The work really began Saturday morning and the committee was in session till eleven at night. The work of defining the voting precincts was particularly perplexing, and remains yet to be carefully checked over and corrected. The descriptions of the precincts will appear in Tuesday's News.

There was adopted a resolution, introduced by W. H. L. Campbell and seconded by Mr. Maharg, to the effect that all Democratic candidates for county and precinct offices shall on or before April 20th pay to the Secretary of the central committee the respective sums heretofore assessed against them; said moneys to be expended under direction of the committee.

A committee was appointed to contract for the printing of the 6,000 tickets and notices necessary for the primary election. The sealed bid plan was followed, bids being solicited from the two Ada newspapers. The bid of The Ada News proving to be much the lowest, the committee promptly awarded the contract to that paper.

The polling places, twenty-nine in number, and officers selected are as follows:

SPLENDID METHODIST CHURCH IS FORMALLY DEDICATED

The dedicatory services at the new Methodist church Sunday were most beautiful and impressive, just such as the splendor of the edifice demanded, just such as fully to gratify the proud anticipations of the congregation and the faithful pastor.

The programme, as published in Saturday's News—consisting of three services—was carried out with marked success; it was a day of dedication full of beauty and of solemnity.

As the congregation early filed in for the morning service they were filled with a reverential awe as they gazed upon the interior of the edifice in all its finished magnificence. Before the opening song the spacious auditorium was filled with people and chairs had to be placed in the vacant floor space.

Both morning and evening the sermon was delivered by the Rev. Dr. W. F. McMurray, church extension secretary of the M. E. Church, South, who came all the way from Louisville, Ky., to be present on this occasion. In the morning, after the preliminary part consisting of song, prayer, and appropriate scripture readings, Dr. McMurray delivered a masterful discourse, taking as a theme the completion of Solomon's Temple, that illustrious model of church building and dedication. It is regrettable that lack of space forbids the publication of the sermon in full. It was a classic from beginning to end. Physically and intellectually a giant, Dr. McMurray, deeply consecrated to the cause, is commensurately a tower of strength in the spiritual realm.

The speaker began with the premise that "man is a worshipping being," distinguished from the rest of God's creatures by his "religious instincts which demand a place of worship;" "the morals of men are best preserved and conserved by a visible shrine."

"The joy of an accomplished purpose," as exemplified in the exultation of the great builder, Solomon, over the completion of his temple, was dwelt upon. Several fine illustrations of this

"joy of completion" were given and the local congregation were praised for having brought their temple to such beautiful completion.

"The beginning of everything good is in God." As God, years before the building of Solomon's Temple, spoke unto David, the father, so to this day he speaks unto his servants and impresses them with good enterprises.

The necessity for the new church building and its various sacred uses were indicated. In conclusion there was emphasized the building's most sublime use—a place wherein sinners are to be saved.

After the sermon Dr. McMurray announced that the church, complete, had cost $15,550, that of this amount there remained unpaid $2,910, which must be raised. With inimitable tact he proceeded to "take up a collection" with the result that $2,305 was subscribed.

At 3 o'clock there was held another service in which other pastors took part.

In the evening Dr. McMurray preached again an impressive sermon. His theme was "Faithfulness," the chief attribute of Moses, who in that respect was immortalized as the prototype of the Savior.

Not quite satisfied with the morning's collection, the powerful and persistent secretary announced some more money must be forthcoming before the formal dedication could take place. There were additional responses to the amount of $379. Some of the brethren "stood good" for the remaining deficit of $226, whereupon Dr. McMurray proceeded with the formal ceremony of dedicating the church.

Much praise and gratitude are due Dr. McMurray for his zealous work for the Ada church and for the inspiration of his sermons. Altogether it was a glorious day for the cause in Ada. The other churches of the city held no services, but joined with the Methodist brethren in their great "joy of completion."

DELEGATE WEAVER OFF TO GUTHRIE FOR THE FINISH

Delegate Carlton Weaver left Monday afternoon to complete this week his labors in Guthrie. The Constitutional convention will reconvene there Tuesday for the purpose of hearing read the final drafts of the Constitution formally adopting it as a whole and affixing the signatures. The session may last three or four days.

While the main subjects usually treated of in Constitutions are practically complete, the primary election provision is yet incomplete and is to be a part of the fundamental law.

In addition to the primary provision is the general election ordinance appointing a supreme election board, the enforcement of which the federal district court at Guthrie ruled against a week ago in the cases brought from Greer and Woods counties. While no one may speak authoritatively, the convention will probably withdraw its ordinance, recognize the existing supreme election board of Oklahoma, which is made operative by the enabling act, and appoint election boards in all of the new counties of Oklahoma and Indian Territories.

By special ordinance it is expected the convention will divide the new counties into commissioner districts and municipal townships as recommended by the respective local delegates; also will appoint, as recommended by the delegates, county boards of election commissioners to divide the counties into voting precincts and locate polling places.

Mr. Weaver expects to recommend for Pontotoc Messrs. T. J. Chambliss, Tip Denton and J. J. Burton, for such board, and probably they will adopt the division work of the Democratic county central committee completed Saturday night to govern the primary election May 23.

MAN THROWN OUT AND KILLED IN RUNAWAY

Buster Elliott, of Allen, was killed in a runaway Sunday morning about 9 o'clock. While preparing to make a drive into the country the team became frightened and uncontrollable. They ran away, throwing Mr. Elliott out violently against the ground. He was run over by the vehicle and received such serious injuries that in a short time he passed away.

The man is a brother-in-law of James Smith who lives in North Ada.

Good Blood.

Without good blood we cannot be healthy, or live long. Plain, healthy food, moderate exercise, and fresh air make good blood; pastry, candy, and the rich and dainty dishes which are considered the masterpieces of the cook's art, cause numerous ailments as well as bad blood. It naturally follows that to eat nutritious, wholesome food and breathe pure air would insure pure blood. There is another thing to be considered, however, says New York Weekly, and that is the casting out of waste material that renders the blood impure. This is usually performed by the bowels, the kidneys, the skin and the lungs. If, then, we would have pure blood, we must see that these organs are kept active. Breathe pure air night and day, being careful to wear no clothing which in the least interferes with deep breathing. Eat plain but substantial food, use a moderate quantity at regular times, and absolutely nothing between meals. Keep the skin active by bathing often, the kidneys active by drinking freely of pure water, and the bowels active by right food and exercise. Keep a clean conscience and a serene mind, and you will have pure blood, and the ruddy tint of health will glow in your cheeks.

Good Manners Dying Out?

Hurry and bridge have killed the art of polite conversation; hurry has robbed correspondence of its grace; hurry is fast transforming the once sedate city of London into a pandemonium of whirling noises, whirling wheels and evil fumes. Dignity, grace, repose are banished from our midst, and we are—as yet—only at the beginning of this breakneck race through life. Perhaps some dusty memoirs of our period will cause the men and women of the future to say: "Those people were very punctilious, very slow, very sedate." That, says Adolphus Vane Tempest, in Nineteenth Century, may be the opinion held in the not very far distant days when contending aeroplanes crash into one another without an apology, and myriads of motor cars sweep over the prostrate bodies of pedestrians without inquiring if they are hurt. But there will be less difference between the people of that day and the people of ours than there is between us and the powdered, courteous gallants and dames who worthily upheld the traditions of good manners when the first gentleman in Europe was "the glass of fashion and the mould of form."

Most of the tortoise shell of commerce is obtained from the hawks-bill turtle, which is taken chiefly in the Caribbean sea. Turtles caught in these waters vary in size from one to four and one-half feet long, with a maximum weight of 150 pounds, and the average weight of shell obtained from each is from six to seven pounds. The commercial value of tortoise shell depends upon the thickness and size of the plates rather than upon the brilliancy of the colors. The price of shell in this market fluctuates from three to six dollars in gold per pound. As the best prices are obtained in England, the largest amount of the shell shipped from these parts goes to that country. The San Blas Indians, however, trade a large amount of shell to coasting schooners, which is partly carried to the States and partly to Colon.

There's a Pittsburger in New York looking for a site for a Fifth avenue home, and he thinks he has a grievance because he cannot find any vacant land for less than $100,000 a lot. Between Fifty-ninth street and Lenox library, at Seventy-second street, he found no available land at all, and from Seventy-second to One Hundred and First street he found only 14 lots offered, at prices running up to $300,000, and that is too rich even for a Pittsburger who has the price.

It has been announced that the Kell canal is to be widened at a cost of many millions in order to enable it to admit vessels of the Dreadnaught type. The Kaiser Wilhelm canal was opened in 1895 by the German emperor. It is 64 miles long and has locks only at its extremities at Holtneau and Brunsbuttel. The width is 197 feet. Its naval value to Germany is said to be equal to 15 men of war.

A German article describes a locomotive equipped with feed-water heaters which has recently been put into service on the Egyptian state railways, and effects a saving in coal consumed of 21.4 per cent., or over $1,000 per year per engine.

The German scientist who predicts that in 300 years water will be worth 15 cents a drink surely expects bath tubs to go entirely out of fashion. At the very best they will be found only in the homes of billionnaires.

VALUE OF FRUIT SOUPS.

Food Value in Dainty Dishes That May Be Served.

Mr. Riley M. Fletcher Berry, in his book, "Fruit Recipes" (Doubleday, Page & Co.), says that fruit soups are usually served cold—where convenient, chilled on ice—in very small china or glass bowls or bouillon cups. With this daintiness of service, however, it may be forgotten or not realized that such soups are not to the stomach mere empty, introductory flourishes, whatever the intent. Fruit soups are foods, and as such are used in many countries by even the peasants, though they may lack delicate table appointments. It is true that a fruit may be used which it not of itself substantial (though the opposite may hold, as with prunes), but the sago, arrowroot, or tapioca used for thickening furnishes a certain amount of heat-producing material, and where wine is added this is increased, so it may readily be understood why, when used in quantity, such combinations may approach, of themselves, substantial meals, or why, even in small measure, fruit soups, with but slight additions of foods containing other balancing elements, may arrive at the right to be chief "dish" of a luncheon or light supper.

As a general rule, stewed fruit, passed through a sieve, may have added to it an equal quantity of water, and to each pint a heaping teaspoonful or scant dessert spoonful of sago, arrowroot (for which cornstarch may be substituted) or tapioca. Some instructors give the rule of a level tablespoonful of cornstarch to each pint of clear, pressed fruit juice, which, however, may be slightly diluted. The arrowroot or cornstarch is a quicker process, and should be dissolved till smooth in a little cold water, added when the fruit juice is at boiling point, then cooked till clear; meantime adding sugar, and later a tablespoonful of lemon juice or wine. If sago or tapioca is used, it must be cooked till thoroughly tender and translucent. A soup made of raspberries may serve as example of a lighter fruit soup. Several recipes for fruit soups and much information valuable to the housekeeper are also given.

THE HOT WATER BAG.

Simple Precautions That Will Preserve Its Usefulness.

Boiling water should never be put into a rubber bag. Do not much more than half fill the bag, then place it in the lap before putting in the stopper, and carefully press out the steam.

This makes the bag softer, as it is relieved of the pressure the steam makes if left in it.

After using the bag drain out the water, let it hang bottom up for a little while, then take it down and with the mouth blow a little air into it, just enough to keep the inside from coming together, as it will often do if there is no air in it, in which case the bag is almost sure to be ruined in pulling it apart.

If the bag ever should stick, put into it some hot water with a few drops of ammonia, let it remain a few minutes, then with a thin, dull-edged stick, try to separate the inside carefully.

Never fold a bag after it has once been used. A flannel bag covering for the rubber bag is very useful.

Care of Shoes.

An excellent preservative of shoe leather is vaseline. If a small quantity be applied to new shoes it will soften the leather, and if enameled leather, will keep it soft much longer than ordinarily and render it less liable to crack.

If worn shoes are cleaned and blackened, and then rubbed with the vaseline, their appearance and wearing qualities will be much improved.

Have a box of oats handy and when the shoes are taken off remove all mud and dirt, lace or button them, fill half full with oats and stuff the tops with crumpled paper.

When necessary to wear the shoes empty them and they will be found to have kept their shape, and will not be drawn if they were in the least damp when taken off.

Cleaning White Silk.

To wash white taffeta and other white silks, proceed as follows:

Having made strong suds by boiling castile soap in soft water, allow it to cool to blood heat or 100 degrees, and wash the silk in it by swishing it about and lightly pressing out the water with the hands.

Dip the goods into suds of the same kind; press the water out once more and hang in an airy, sunless place until almost dry, pulling out all wrinkles from time to time. Roll the silk carefully over a board, and let it lie wrapped in a towel until there is only a trace of moisture left.

Smooth it under a fine, white cloth with a moderately warm iron. If a clear tone of white is desired, add bluing to the water; if an ivory shade is preferred, use the clear suds.

Torn Wall Paper.

When a hole has been made in the wall paper in moving a piece of furniture, if one has no paper like the one on the wall, a judicious use of water colors will work wonders. The torn paper should be first straightened as neatly as possible and glued down. Then touch up the vacant spaces and the seams with paints the color of the paper at that place, says Home Chat. The break will be almost invisible if the water colors are used carefully. Tiny tubes of water color paints can be bought at any artists' supplies shop.

ROAD TO SUCCESS

PUBLICITY IS THE MAIL-ORDER MAN'S GREAT WEAPON.

MERCHANTS MUST ADVERTISE

"Fight Fire with Fire" and the Dollars Now Going Cityward Will Stay in the Home Community.

The merchant who would wage successful warfare against mail-order competition should study mail-order methods. The same tactics that takes the dollar out of the community will keep it at home.

And what are mail-order methods?

The keynote of it all may be found in the one word—publicity. The mail-order house advertises. It does not advertise better goods at less money than the home merchant gives, but it advertises persistently. It puts its proposition before the public constantly. It recognizes no dull season in its campaign for publicity. It never lets up.

At a gathering in Iowa some time ago a mail-order man explained some of the system followed in the campaign of publicity. According to this explanation the mail-order house seeks the line of least resistance in its search for business. Whenever they can find a town in which the merchants are not active advertisers they flood that community with their literature. When they find a town in which the furniture dealer, for example, is afraid to use printer's ink they pay particular attention to the subject of furniture. They are searching for the weakest link in the chain of home defenses.

Something of this is explained by Intelligent advertising means "a icing the bulldog power and tenacity of the local press on the competition offered the home merchant by the catalogue houses. Intelligent advertising means the employment of mail-order methods in combating the mail-order evil.

the conditions the writer saw in a mill town in northern Wisconsin. The local paper carried practically no local advertising when the size of the town was considered, and the stores of the town were but small affairs. In talking to one of the merchants he complained that more than $25,000 was sent from that community to the Chicago mail-order houses each month. "That is easily twice the amount that is spent in all the stores in this town put together each month," he explained. "Merchandizing don't pay in such a place as this."

A few hours later the writer was talking with the publisher of the local paper, and the conversation turned to local advertising, or rather the lack of it.

"I was very much tempted to accept a proposition which I received from one of the Chicago mail-order houses a few days ago," said the publisher. "I still have the proposition here on my desk. They offer me a cash contract at my regular display rates for 1,500 inches, to be used during the year, and in addition to the cash advertising they offer me a small commission on all the new business secured in this county during the life of the contract. They say their business in this county during the last 12 months was approximately $8,000 per month, and I would secure a small percentage on all business done over this amount during the next 12 months."

"Have you shown that proposition to the merchants of this town?" I asked.

"I have, and it didn't move them," he replied. "They simply say it don't pay to advertise. I would jump at the offer if it were not for the fact that I cannot bring myself to the point of doing that which I know will help to kill this community."

There was an illustration of mail-order methods. The wide-awake mail-order man proposed to reap a golden harvest from the field the very-much-asleep local merchant would not cultivate.

Does it pay to advertise?

The more than $200,000,000 that finds its way to the Chicago mail-order houses each year is garnered by a campaign of advertising. You, Mr. Local Merchant, claim, and rightly, that you can sell the same goods for the same, or less money, than the mail-order houses offer, but at the same time you complain because the mail-order man gets the business.

Why do they get it? Because they advertise.

They not only advertise, but they advertise in your field, and they advertise in your field because you do not. They select towns, or special lines where they do not have to meet the competition that is offered by local advertising, and they make advertising pay.

We want the people to trade at home; we want them to build up the home community; we want to see the dollars kept in circulation here that one and all of the local people may prosper. We do not want to see the fortunes of the city mail-order man built at the expense of the local community, but we know absolutely the value of publicity, and we know the mail-order houses will capture the dollars if the local merchants will not fight fire with fire; will not show the public what they can buy and at what price.

Let us go back to this northern Wisconsin town and see what opportunities the merchants there were sacrificing. It was a mill town, and in no way an agricultural community. There were not 20 farms within a radius of as many miles. The industry was lumber, and the money to run the mills came from the city. The nearly 1,000 employees were paid in city money, and with a little effort on the part of the merchants in that town this money might have been kept in the town. It might have been made to build a permanent prosperity. But

A LIFE-SAVING PLAN

STEAMER AND BARGE TO BE USED AIDING WRECKED BOATS.

Utter Failure Sometimes of Efforts From Land to Rescue Shipwrecked People Leads to Unique Scheme.

The noble work of the life savers along the sea coast is not to be discounted one whit, but often their superhuman efforts for the saving of life from some stranded vessel prove unavailing and it must be admitted that shore aid at its greatest efficiency is still inadequate. It remains, therefore, to discover some more certain means of reaching a wrecked vessel and taking off safely the human lives which may be thereon, and this it is believed has been found in a scheme that has met the approval of the president, and which is nothing more nor less than a life-saving steamer and an ocean barge which is to be used in the work of rescue. Mr. John Arbuckle, the coffee merchant, has offered to furnish all the necessary wrecking boats and outfit free of expense to the government. The plan is to have two life-saving vessels working in conjunction, anchor on the ocean side of the wreck. Spray the water with oil, fire a life line across the ship and take off the people in breeches buoy or by a flexible iron gangway that can be extended from the saving barge to the wreck, so that passengers and crew may reach safety no matter how great the storm or high the surf or how far the wreck is from the shore.

Mr. Arbuckle called on President Roosevelt at the White House and showed him the drawing for rescuing people from wrecked vessels when it was impossible for the life saving corps to reach the wreck. He understood the plan in a moment, and said it was a good thing. Then he wrote the following letter introducing him to Representative Cocks, who took him to the head of the life saving service.

"My Dear Mr. Cocks: You must know already who Mr. John Arbuckle is, but I introduce him to you anyhow as a gentleman whom I have long known as interested in many admirable charities. He has a scheme in connection with life saving which seems to me excellent. He wishes to try it at his own expense, and merely wishes authorization from congress to do it. Won't you go with Mr. Arbuckle to the proper official of the treasury, go over it there, and then, if you think proper, I shall be glad if you can see your way clear to introduce the bill. Sincerely yours, "THEODORE ROOSEVELT. "Hon. W. W. Cocks, House of Representatives."

The proposed bill prepared by Mr. Arbuckle, is as follows:

Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives in congress assembled, that the secretary of the treasury be and he is hereby authorized and directed to cause proper notification to be conveyed to the John Arbuckle Life Saving company, or any other company or companies possessing life saving vessels equipped with wireless telegraph appliances, of all wrecks which may occur on the Atlantic coast; and provided further, that the officers of the United States life saving service shall cooperate with the John Arbuckle Life Saving company, or said other companies, in protection of human life and insuring the safety of vessels under such regulations as the secretary of the treasury may prescribe; and provided further, that the John Arbuckle Life saving company, or other said companies, shall receive no remuneration whatsoever from the government for such service."

The vessels shall be anchored at Sandy Hook lightship with steam up, ready to go to the rescue, and it should be made the duty of the life saving corps to guide the vessels by detonations from the beach opposite the wreck and by rockets at night.

The vessels are being fitted with electric searchlights, so that the work of rescue may proceed night and day. The company is to receive no remuneration from the government for such services.

POLAR PAINTINGS.

RUSSIAN ARTIST WHOSE WORK WAS DONE IN FROZEN NORTH.

Most Remarkable Collection of Pictures of Arctic Region Coming to America for Display.

New York city and possibly other cities of this country may be afforded the privilege of seeing a collection of paintings which have been creating a stir in art circles in Vienna, Berlin, Paris and London, where the collection now is on display and from which city it is expected they will cross the Atlantic to this country.

The theme of the paintings is the magnetic north, and the heroic Russian painter, Alexander Borissoff, succeeded in getting his remarkable scenes of the frozen north upon canvas only after suffering great privations and hardships. It is the first time that the scenes of the far arctic regions have been painted right on the grounds, and that is the remarkable feature of this collection of paintings and explains the striking effects which have been produced. Vienna saw the work of this painter of polar pictures and acknowledged that "nothing of the kind had ever been seen" there before. Paris, sated as it is with exhibitions, fell under the charm of what was described as "a new revelation in the art of painting;" and for a few weeks past all London has been trooping to the Grafton galleries to admire the product of an artist treating of an almost unknown pictorial field.

Alexander Alexievitch Borissoff, to give him his full name, is a shy, unassuming man, 41 years of age, of the true Russian type, broad-shouldered and somewhat stockily built, with high cheek bones and eyes set far back beneath a massive forehead betokening imagination and intellect. From a casual glance nobody would suppose that this rather ordinary looking man had been through a desperate venture in a land of snow and ice, and had brought back, fixed upon canvas, realistic reproductions of scenes in that fascinating frozen north of which so many dauntless explorers have sought to penetrate the fastnesses and unveil the mystery.

Borissoff's pictures and studies have all been painted in the ice zone beyond the seventieth parallel of north latitude, in the district between Archangel and the Yalmal peninsula, including the great island of Novaya Zemlya, between the Arctic ocean and the Kara sea. As one critic has said of them, "for the first time we westerners and southerners have here revealed to us the richness and variety of the aspects of the frozen world of the polar circle. There in a region which our ignorant imagination has covered as with a shroud of sepia tones, the sensitive artist's eye of Borissoff has detected such gradations of light and shade between the appalling blackness of the chill abysses of the Arctic ocean and the dazzling radiance of the snow sheets as scarcely any master in chiaroscuro, however favorable his opportunities, has ever noted."

Two of the pictures belonging to the czar are on exhibition at the Grafton galleries in London. One of them shows the almost fantastic lights and shadows of Novaya-Zemlya under an eclipse, while the other is a weirdly desolate shore scene on the same coast, where after an exceptionally severe winter a number of poor hunters had perished. Reverently the survivors of the little band had interred their comrades, setting a rude cross over their resting places, until the last had perished, and a solitary white fox, surrounded by a few bleaching bones, is the central figure in a haunting picture. From the French government comes a study of the Kara sea, with its chill contrast of dark waters and towering icebergs. For the most part the pictures are small canvases, depicting glaciers, icebergs, snowdrifts, the beginning of a thaw, inhospitable coast scenes, Samoyedes at home or with their boats and sledges, reindeer, dogs, foxes, and, indeed, something of all the conditions of life under such inhospitable surroundings. Every imaginable atmospheric effect is depicted, from the wonderful glow of the midnight sun to raw, hanging fog that can be well-nigh felt.

was only after suffering great privations and hardships. It is the first time that the scenes of the far arctic regions have been painted right on the grounds, and that is the remarkable feature of this collection of paintings and explains the striking effects which have been produced. Vienna saw the work of this painter of polar pictures and acknowledged that "nothing of the kind had ever been seen" there before. Paris, sated as it is with exhibitions, fell under the charm of what was described as "a new revelation in the art of painting;" and for a few weeks past all London has been trooping to the Grafton galleries to admire the product of an artist treating of an almost unknown pictorial field.

Alexander Alexievitch Borissoff, to give him his full name, is a shy, unassuming man, 41 years of age, of the true Russian type, broad-shouldered and somewhat stockily built, with high cheek bones and eyes set far back beneath a massive forehead betokening imagination and intellect. From a casual

The nine instruments seen here produce only two or three notes apiece. They are played by swinging the frames in such a way as to slide the whistle-shaped sections of bamboo back and forth over the openings in the horizontal bamboo pipe. The result is of course something very queer to western ears, but really not unpleasant. Mr. James Rialton of Maplewood, N. J., after photographing these players bought this entire set of instruments for the equivalent of fifteen cents, and brought them home to his private museum.

ALCOHOL OF GARBAGE.

ROCKFORD PHYSICIAN CLAIMS IM-PORTANT DISCOVERY.

Makes Proposition to City Officials of Milwaukee to Take Charge of Plant—Says He Can Effect Great Saving.

Milwaukee, Wis.—That denatured alcohol can be made from garbage and that an important industry is about to be created is the contention of Dr. W. A. Boyd, of Rockford, Ill., who has made a proposition to Milwaukee to take charge of its garbage and to save the city $50,000 a year if it uses his method instead of the municipal plant that it now operates.

The city is paying at the rate of $1.89 a ton for burning the garbage and its plant is nearly a wreck. Dr. Boyd has offered to do the work at 70 cents a ton, a saving of $1.19 a ton, and at the end of ten years to turn the plant over to the city free of charge. He says that experiments that he has carried on in Chicago convince him that even at his low figures he can make a good profit.

A number of cities in the country are now investigating Dr. Boyd's system, among them Milwaukee, Lancaster, Pa., and Long Branch, N. J.

Milwaukee has had no end of trouble. The authorities originally estimated that its city plant would cost $60,000, but it cost over $100,000 before it was finished.

Then it was discovered that the plant had been built on a quicksand foundation and that it was in danger of sliding into the river. Then it was found that it could not be operated with as small a force as had been estimated. A much larger force had to be engaged and as a result the expense increased.

Then the machinery gave out and finally graft was discovered. Politics had crept into the plant and politicians used it as an easy berth for their friends.

One case was discovered in which a politician sold the garbage collectors old horses and wagons at exorbitant prices in consideration for getting them the positions. The collectors in turn went outside the city, collected garbage at so much a barrel, pocketed the fee and brought the stuff into the city to be burned at the city plant at city expense.

An investigation also showed that the coal bills at the plant were enormous and inquiry developed that the city was footing the fuel bills of a neighborhood that was using city coal to heat the homes. Finally the machinery gave out and the plant was closed. Just now the city is burying its garbage.

The proposition of the Rockford physician, who was formerly health commissioner there, seems to be a good way out of the dilemma and it is probable that his offer will be accepted. The council has written to a number of eastern cities and most of them favor reduction over incineration. Dr. Bading, the health commissioner, is opposed to reduction and for that reason the council has sent out a number of letters to eastern cities to secure information as to the best methods. Dr. Boyd says that the possibilities from garbage are much more than most people believe. He says that fertilizer and grease alone make garbage profitable to handle, but under the new government law the manufacture of denatured alcohol will greatly reduce the cost of the disposal of refuse.

WON BY VOICE OF A GIRL.

New York Man Weds a Lowell (Mass.)
Telephone Operator.

Lowell, Mass.—Falling in love with her voice, which he heard over the wire, and then with the girl herself, Donald W. Wardwell of New York city has carried off Florence M. Ingalls, a pretty telephone operator of this city.

The wedding took place at the residence of Rev. A. St. John Chambré, pastor of St. Anne's Episcopal church. Few of their friends knew of it, but the news quickly spread, and when then took a train for Boston en route for New York 100 young women were at the station to give them a send-off.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Thomas Ingalls of West Fourth street. Her father is dead. She has a brother teaching in the Philippine islands. She herself is a graduate of the Lowell high school, class of 1903. She has been in the local telephone exchange for three years.

His Wooden Leg a Storeroom.

Contained Whisky, Money, Burglar Tools and Other Things.

Philadelphia.—How a wooden leg for a long time enabled John Woods to laugh cell locks to scorn and acquire a record as a jailbreaker was told in the city hall police court by Special Policeman Spencer. The leg did not figure as a factor in the prosecution, Woods being held on the charge of stealing a ring belonging to John Gaynor of 2813 Agate street.

Spencer said that Woods was a Jeweler by trade. His wooden leg served him until recently, when the police found it was not only a means of locomotion, but a storeroom for lock picks, false keys, liquor and money.

Twice Woods had sawed his way out of cells in the Trenton avenue police station in a way that mystified the turnkeys and house sergeants, said Spencer. Once Woods, apparently sober, was placed in a cell. An hour later he was uproariously drunk. He was taken out of his cell and searched, all but his wooden leg, and then locked up again. Within another hour he was again detected cutting the lock from his cell door with a fine saw.

The wooden leg supplied the key to the mystery. It had been hollowed out and in this cavity were found a canteen of whisky, a roll of money, a set of fine saws and several keys.

After that, Spencer said, Woods was never locked in a cell until his false leg had been unstrapped and searched. "The famous leg," said Spencer, who seemed to have its history at his tongue's end, "had also figured as a weapon in assaulting many a policeman."

Woods only smiled when Magistrate Kochersperger held him on the larceny charge.

To Work Sapphire Mines.

Preparations are being made to work the sapphire mines at Yogo gulch extensively. Yogo dike, which is in Montana, is four miles long and it is estimated that the workable rock will approximate 10,000,000 cubic yards. While the stones found there are comparatively small, they are unusually brilliant, without flaws and of beautiful tints. Their shape is generally of such character that the culls, or smaller ones, are well suited for bearings of watches, and for this purpose they need little cutting.

GAIN IN POPULATION

CENSUS FIGURES SHOW MARVEL-LOUS GROWTH IN SIX YEARS.

Nearly 8,000,000 More People in United States in 1906 Than in 1900—
New York Still Largest City, Chicago Second.

Washington.—The population of continental United States, according to the estimates of the census bureau, was 83,941,510 in 1906. This is 7,946,935 more than the population in 1900. The estimated population of the United States, including Alaska and insular possessions, in 1906 was 93,182,240. The growth in population in continental United States from 1905 to 1906 was 1,367,315.

The population of continental United States in 1905 as obtained by adding to the returns of the states which took a census in that year the estimated population of the remaining states and territories is 82,575,195, an increase over 1900 of 6,579,610, or 8.7 per cent.

Computed on the basis of the estimate the density of population of continental United States in 1906 was 28 persons per square mile, as compared with 26 in 1900.

Chicago remains the second city in the union in point of population, New York being first with 4,113,043. The figures for Chicago are 2,949,185. In 1900 it was 1,698,575. The gain in six years therefore is 2,500,610. New York is twice as large as Chicago. Six years ago its population was 3,437,202, so that its increase has been 665,841.

Philadelphia has 1,441,735, against 1,293,697 six years ago. St. Louis has passed Boston in the race, the Missouri metropolis having 649,320 in 1906 and 575,238 in 1900. Six years ago Boston had 595,083, while in 1906 the bean eaters' city had 602,278.

Illinois is the third state of the union in point of population. In 1906 the census bureau estimates that it was populated by 5,418,670 persons, as against 4,821,550 in 1900. New York is leader with 8,226,990; then comes Pennsylvania with 5,928,575; Ohio, 4,448,677; Indiana, 2,710,598.

The rapid growth of urban population is noteworthy. The total estimated population of incorporated places having 8,000 or more inhabitants, exclusive of San Francisco and Los Angeles, Cal., is 28,466,624 for 1906, an increase over 1900 of 3,912,188, or 15.9 per cent., while the estimated population of the United States exclusive of these cities showed an increase of 4,480,003, or only 8.8 per cent.

The 88 cities with an estimated population of 50,000 or more in 1906 had a total estimated population of 19,771,167, an increase of 2,766,863, or 16.3 per cent., over that reported at the twelfth census.

The states that took a census in 1905 are Florida, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Wyoming. In Michigan the census is taken in the years ending with a "4."

The population returns for these states was 26,263,877, an increase since 1900 of 1,901,572, or 7.8 per cent. For the remaining states and territories the population for 1905 as determined by the method adopted by the bureau was 56,283,059, an increase over 1900 of 4,374,040, or 8.4 per cent. The population of the 14 states making an enumeration, if estimated in the same manner, would be 26,204,762, a difference of only 0.2 per cent. from the actual returns.

PENSION TO POOR PARENTS.

Ohio Official Proposes New Method of Preventing Child Labor.

Columbus, O.—State Shop Inspector Morgan in his annual report submitted to the governor makes the novel proposition that the state of Ohio set aside a fund to be devoted to paying parents in poor circumstances who are now compelled to let their young children work in factories, to enable them to take the children from the factories and put them in school.

Gov. Harris is inclined to look on the proposal with favor and may recommend a law to the legislature covering the matter.

Mr. Morgan says that Ohio leads all the states in child labor legislation, but he is openly opposed to giving employers discretion to employ children where parents need their wages. Instead he suggests a school pension law by which the parents may be paid an equivalent sum out of the public treasury and the child sent to school.

MAKES HIMSELF AT HOME.

Burglar Breaks Into House, Bathes,
Sleeps and Then Robs.

Stamford, Conn.—After breaking into the home of two wealthy maiden sisters, the Misses Frances and Cornelia Smith and finding it untenanted, a burglar calmly took a sleep in one of their rooms before selecting the articles which he wished to steal.

He set the alarm clock for five o'clock. When he awoke he took a bath, ate a hearty breakfast and then commenced a leisurely inspection of the valuable articles in the house.

The Smith sisters are in the south, and when the caretaker found the broken window in the kitchen he ran to summon the police. While an officer was climbing through the broken window the burglar walked out of the front door with several hundred dollars' worth of booty and escaped in the direction of Greenwich unseen by the officer.

RAISING CANARY BIRDS.

GERMANY CONTROLS WORLD'S MARKET OF SINGERS.

Exceptionally Good Ones Command
Fancy Prices—How the Young Are Trained—Are Very Sensible to Drafts.

Washington.—Writing from Madgeburg, Consul Frank S. Hannah says concerning the business of raising canary birds in the Harz mountains:

"The breeding and selling of canary birds in Germany, which has reached such proportions that it now controls the markets of the world, is conservatively estimated of a value of $238,000. In St. Andreasburg alone 50,000 canaries are yearly raised for export. For an exceptionally good singer and breeder at least 300 marks ($71.49) must be paid and 100 marks ($23.80) is often paid for a good so-called 'Vorsaeuger,' a bird used to teach the younger canaries to sing by example. The normal price for good singers varies from $2.86 to $8.57. Absolute quiet and undisturbed intimate relations exist between the breeder and his birds. Similar conditions are attained by the Madgeburg breeders. Many of the so-called 'Harz canaries' which are exported to the United States are bred in the city of Madgeburg, where some of the best singers are produced.

"The training of the young birds to sing correctly is one of the most important and laborious features of the breeder's activity. The young birds, learning by imitation for the most part, acquire bad singing as well as good, and while it is the plan of the breeders that the birds should only hear the good singing of the 'Vorsaeuger,' yet some of them naturally chirp and whistle in an unpleasant manner, and care must be taken that these birds be removed before the other birds have acquired the same bad habits and are rendered unsalable. The art of the breeder lies in his being able to discover the slumbering talent in the bird at an early age, developing the same to its highest point of perfection in its particular line. These birds are divided into classes and kept in separate rooms, those having harsh and sharp voices being often placed in covered cages, where instead of singing they are forced to listen to other good singers, through which their faults are often overcome. The better singers, after passing a certain stage where their habits are established and they do not require the close daily watching of the breeder, are taken into a room reserved for the best singers. The elementary training for the singer is generally finished by the end of November and the singing is at its best at the beginning of January and again after the mating time. Canaries are very sensitive to drafts and some singers, the results of years of careful breeding and training, have been ruined by a few moments' exposure by an open window.

"The exports of canaries from this district for the calendar year 1905 was $37,685 and for the calendar year 1906 $40,048."

NEGROES AFRAID OF COMET.

Report in Indian Territory Towns
That Earth's End Is Near.

Muskogee, I. T.—The ignorant negroes throughout Indian territory are greatly excited by the reported approach of a destructive comet. In many places they have quit work and are assembling nightly in churches and holding religious services.

It is reported at Fort Gibson and at many other points along the Arkansas river where there are large negro settlements that the comet is the only thing talked about, and the negroes believe that the world is coming to an end. This condition has reached such proportions that the Times-Democrat, a local newspaper, telegraphed Prof. P. J. J. See, of Mare Island, asking his opinion about the comet. His reply was:

"The comet is a ghost of the air. It is going from the earth instead of toward it. There is no danger of contact."

A great many Indians have also become alarmed over the agitation, but they are not demonstrative about it, as are the negroes. At Westville it is reported that meetings are being held nightly and prayer offered. These reports come from the smaller towns and rural communities. There is not much excitement among the negroes of the larger town, although it is understood that in nearly every church service Sunday reference was made to it.

Would Manage Whole Town.

Armour, S. D.—One man may run this town—not a political boss, but a business manager. J. C. Cantonwine is, with other taxpayers, disgusted with the city debt and high assessments. He will put up a bond guaranteeing that if given the management of the city's affairs he will demonstrate that a town and city can be run profitably when conducted along business lines.

Some of the aldermen look askance at the proposition, but the taxpayers generally would like to try it. Armour has 2,000 inhabitants and is a thriving town, but it has a bonded debt of $10,000, and city warrants have to be sold at a discount.

WATER CURE FOR THE INSANE

Innovation Will Be Introduced at Philadelphia Almshouse.

Philadelphia.—Treatment of the insane by water with the idea of washing away insanity germs will be an innovation in the new quarters for the insane at the Philadelphia almshouse, which will be opened soon. Dr. Coply, director of the department of health, is confident of the success of the movement.

The plant is designed primarily for the treatment of cases of acute mania by a system of bathing by which the body of the patient is kept completely submerged in running water for as long a time as is deemed necessary to effect a cure. The plant, in its present form, is composed of a number of rooms, of which two are specially set aside for this kind of treatment.

In each bathroom a hammock is arranged on which the patient's body rests. Above are hot and cold water faucets with a thermometer attached for gauging the temperature. There is a special appliance for emptying the tub instantly. The water generally is kept at a temperature of 100 degrees and is kept continually flowing.

The patient remains in the hammock for a period varying from four to eight hours at a time. At the end of each period he is taken from the bath and placed on a cot, rubbed down, and allowed to rest for half an hour.

He then is returned to the swinging hammock and immersed in water. The only purpose for which he is taken from the water is an occasional rest. His meals are given to him in the bath.

The head, which rests on a circular rubber cushion, is the only portion of the body not submerged.

A Great Telegraph School.

That Parsons has one of the best Telegraph Schools in the country is evidenced by the fact that railroad companies are seeking its graduates. During the past week this school had ten more calls for operators than it was able to fill at salaries ranging from $40.00 to $100.00 per month. The demand made upon this school is caused partly by the shortage of operators and partly because the students from the Parsons School of Telegraphy are qualified to hold positions as operators and are trained for regular railroad work.

Young people if you wish to better your conditions it will pay you to correspond with this school and consider a course in telegraphy, it will pay large dividends on the investment.

For full particulars address Parsons School of Telegraphy, Parsons, Kansas.

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the controller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

TWAIN'S FRIENDS WERE MANY.

Little Jean Thought He Had Almost Reached the Limit.

We had recently arrived in Berlin, and had begun housekeeping in a furnished apartment. One morning at breakfast a vast card arrived—an invitation. To be precise, it was a command from the emperor of Germany to come to dinner. During several months I had encountered socially, on the continent, men bearing lofty titles; and all this while Jean was becoming more and more impressed, and awed, and subdued, by these imposing events, for she had not been abroad before, and they were new to her—wonders out of dreamland turned into realities. The imperial card was passed from hand to hand, around the table, and examined with interest; when it reached Jean she exhibited excitement and emotion, but for a time was quite speechless; then she said: "Why, papa, if it keeps going on like this, pretty soon there won't be anybody for you to get acquainted with but God." It was not complimentary to think I was not acquainted in that quarter, but she was young, and the young jump to conclusions without reflection.—North American Review.

Borrowing Trouble

Now, the very worst things that might happen, you know, are the things that don't happen at all. We fidget and worry, lamenting and sorry, in the grasp of expectancy's thrall. Apprehensive forebodings encumber our souls. Depression weighs down like a pall. So we wear a long face with a very poor grace. And then nothing happens at all. When we prophesy storms it is sure to clear off. When our money's gone, something comes in. And the thoughts of those bills which have given us chills. Every month shouldn't make us grow thin—

For they fly down the past like the leaves on the blast. We settle up, somehow, and why do we bother and fret over what we forget? Before many days have passed by? We were not carried off by that terrible cough. And in fact, 'twasn't much, come to think—All our pains and our aches and our dreadful mistakes. Why, they too have slid over the brink of the gulf that forgets; yet we still wring our hands. Predicting some ruinous fall. Approaching disaster we hail as our master—And then nothing happens at all. —Elliott Walker, in Spare Moments.

membered that his heart had fallen right near where I was standing, and that as I looked at it I could see it beat two or three times. The memory of this night came flashing over me as I waited for the train, and I think for a moment I must have fainted.

Realized Child's Bravery.
"I did not open my eyes until I heard Katie's voice at my side and felt the strong arms of the trainmen lifting me and carrying me to the station. And there I wept, I guess hysterically, for I then realized just how brave the child's act was, for I knew that when Katie started up the track waving the muffer she never intended to get off the track until she had stopped the train."

All that Katie would say about her part in averting a tragedy was: "You see, the engine had to stop, for I had a red signal. You know that always stops a train, and I waved it at the engineer because I didn't know anything else to do to make him stop. I couldn't lift mother out and so I just had to stop the train. I don't think there is anything funny in that."
"No, I wasn't afraid. What should I be afraid of? Didn't I have the red muffer? Don't trains always stop when the man at the flaghouse waves a red flag? Well, then, what should I be afraid of?"
That's the kind of a girl Katie is. She knew no fear. She had absolute confidence that the red flag controlled the motion of the wheels of the ponderous "iron horse" and made her mother's life perfectly safe.

EFFECT OF WOMEN VOTING

British Writer Tells of Conditions in New Zealand.

"New Zealand was the first British colony to adopt women's suffrage—as far back as 1893," says a writer in the London Chronicle. "The New Zealand woman was given universal adult suffrage. Though she had not sought it, she immediately used it. Out of 140,000 women 109,000 had placed themselves on the register in a few months, and 90,000 voted in the general election of November, 1893. They voted peacefully and in order during the day while the men were at work, and left the booths to the men in the evening. They have voted with similar regularity and orderliness ever since. How do the women use their powers? Very calmly, by all accounts. Roughly, women make very much the same use of the franchise as do men. The result has not produced either a new heaven or a new hell. Men have not been deprived of their rights. There has been no disorder or unseemly behavior—no strange revolution in dress or manners. Enfranchisement has led neither to divided households nor divided skirts. Families, as a matter of fact, generally vote on the same side. But on the other hand, there is a general agreement that family life has become brighter, that husbands and wives have more subjects in common to talk about, and that women are really setting themselves to study and watch public affairs."

"The effects, in fact, have been rather social than political. Women seem to be treated with more real respect—and not merely at election times. There has arisen between the sexes that sense of equality which is perhaps the only permanent and enduring social basis. Speaking generally, they have simply become citizens, whose part in public affairs is not sharply distinguished from that of men. New Zealand women have simply stepped into equality. And 14 years of political life have shown them equal to that equality. Working side by side with man, woman still keeps her place—not like to like, but like in difference."

"The word pictures of which colonists used to have so many given them of domestic discord, of children forgotten, husbands uncared for, dinners uncooked, dress and appearances neglected—have already almost passed from memory. It is the commonest sight to see husband, wife and grown-up children walking or driving cheerfully to the polls together. The head of the family has become a more important factor in politics than of old."

The Horse Doctor.

Little Mattie flew into the house last evening very late for nursery tea, and hurried to her mother's chair. "Oh, mother," she cried, "don't scold me, for I've had such a disappointment! A horse fell down in the street and they said they were going to send for a horse doctor, so of course I had to stay. And after I waited and waited he came, and oh, mother, what do you think, it was only a man!"—Harper's.

Children Should Eat Fat.

Fat is essential to the proper growth of the tissues of the nerves and brain, and is peculiarly important to children, as the brain enlarges rapidly during childhood. Next to butter and cream, bacon is one of the most palatable forms in which it can be given. It should not be overcooked, as then too much of the fat is fried out. Sometimes bread soaked in bacon fat will be eaten with relish.

Ventilation by Columns.

Ventilation through iron columns is an interesting feature of a mill at Preston, England. Air is drawn in at ground level, forced by fans through a water spray, heated by coils in the usual way and then distributed from subducts below the basement level to the different rooms, the iron columns having registers near their tops. Flues in the walls provide for the escape of air from these rooms.

PERIODICAL MADNESS

By ROBERT C. BROWN.

Homer Parker had never had an affaire de coeur and the most singular thing about it was that Homer was 32 years old.

Love had always been somewhat of a joke to him. He had never looked the question fairly in the face and he laughed at the possibility of ever doing so.

"Love is a sort of periodical madness," he used to argue to himself. "They all get over it after a year or two and then they look sourly at the minister who was responsible for tying them up, or down, to love."

In other words, Parker was a cynic. He scoffed at love, made light of it, and boasted his imperviousness. He was wedded to his art, and his art was music. There could never have been a better match, for Parker loved his music as himself.

One day the bachelor went to the phone to call up a friend. The line was busy, he listened a moment. Then he listened a little longer.

A sweet, mellow, musical voice floated over the wire. He had never before heard the like. The beauty, the fullness of that voice held him to the instrument.

"Surely," he thought, "the woman who possesses that voice must be different." And then he listened some more—the sweet voice thrilled him, filled him, and he could not get it out of his mind the whole day.

That night he patiently held the receiver to his ear for half an hour, hoping ever that the same voice would call again.

But his efforts were unrewarded and he went to bed, his brain pulsating with the discovery and his mind seeking for the owner of that voice.

The next morning he listened at the phone and again he heard the same tones. He stood entranced and listened. There was no other voice on earth like it, to Parker.

An all consuming desire came over him as he hung up the receiver. He determined to seek out and find that voice.

A small suspicion of love came into his mind, but he laughed it aside in his hurry to assure himself that it was solely in the interests of music that he wished to find the owner of that voice.

Hurriedly putting on his hat and coat he rushed to the telephone office. There he found the names and addresses of the three parties on his line and then he returned home eagerly. They were all on his street; that voice lived within a block of him and yet he did not know its owner.

The thought maddened him, he brooded over it, rushed to the phone in hope of again hearing it—but the line was silent.

Suddenly an idea came to him. He would call up each of the houses on that line and then he could easily locate the voice.

His first attempt was unsuccessful; he excused himself by saying that he had gotten the wrong number.

Then he called up the next on his list. A sudden thrill shot through him as he heard the soft "Hello" and realized that it was addressed to him. He said nothing, he had found it, and, accordingly, he quietly hung up the receiver with a happy sigh.

"Miss Cornelia Courtland," he read from his list. "Well, that's funny, she can't live there alone, can she? But it relieves my mind on one score, anyway. She is not married."

Again putting on his hat and coat he went out into the street and sauntered past the house which contained that voice. Then he went into a corner store and waited.

Finally a woman came from the house. His eyes fairly devoured her as she came up the street. Her dress was smart, there was no jarring of colors in what she wore, there was an artistic air about her that was appealing. To Parker she was divine.

He stood awkwardly looking into a showcase when she entered the store.

"Good morning, Mrs. Kendall, how is your aunt, Miss Courtland, today?" inquired the affable proprietor of the store.

"Somewhat better, thank you," warbled that divine voice, which Parker recognized in a moment.

His head swam, his fingers grew cold. With a compressed feeling about his chest he strode out into the open air.

Madly he rushed to his room, packed up his belongings, and moved far away from that telephone line.

A month later he sighed, as he sat before his bachelor fire, musing to himself: "Love is a sort of periodical madness, they all get over it in a year or two. By George! I hope I do."

Just a Gentle Hint.

Chief Justice Fuller apparently wishes it to be known that he has no intention of resigning to make room for Mr. Taft. The chief justice recently gave a dinner, at which both the president and Mr. Taft were present. Mr. Fuller showed his guests a new portrait of himself and remarked that it made him look young. "Not a day younger than the original," said Mr. Taft, gracefully. "Thank you," said the justice, adding with what looked like just a trifle of emphasis: "I never felt better in my life."

King Edward a Pigeon-Fancier.

It may not be generally known that King Edward is fond of pigeon-racing, and has participated actively in it. His majesty has a big loft full of pigeons at Sandringham, where they are regularly and specially trained for long-distance races. Some years ago one of his birds won the biggest race of the year, the "Pigeon Derby," in a magnificent flight home from Lerwick.

SLEEP BROKEN BY ITCHING.

Eczema Covered Whole Body for a Year—No Relief Until Cuticura Remedies Prove a Success.

"For a year I have had what they call eczema. I had an itching all over my body, and when I would retire for the night it would keep me awake half the night, and the more I would scratch, the more it would itch. I tried all kinds of remedies, but could get no relief."

"I used one cake of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura, and two vials of Cuticura Resolvent Pills, which cost me a dollar and twenty-five cents in all, and am very glad I tried them, for I was completely cured. Walter W. Pughusch, 297 N. Robey St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 8 and 16, 1906."

HONEST MEDICINE

TRY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR STOMACH TROUBLE.

Convincing Evidence Supported by a Guarantee That Must Convince The Most Skeptical.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a doctor's prescription, used by an eminent practitioner, and for nearly a generation known as a reliable household remedy throughout the United States. Needless to say, no advertised medicine could retain popular favor for so long a period without having great merit and it is the invaluable curative properties of the pills that have made them a standard remedy in every civilized country in the world. Added to this is the absolute guarantee that the pills contain no harmful drug, opiate, narcotic or stimulant. A recent evidence of their efficacy is found in the statement of Mrs. N. B. Whitley, of Boxley, Ark., who says:

"I had suffered for a good many years from stomach trouble. For a long time I was subject to bad spells of faintness and lack of breath accompanied by an indescribable feeling that seemed to start in my stomach. Whenever I was a little run-down or over-tired, these spells would come on. They occurred frequently but did not last very long."

"I was confined to my bed for ten weeks one time and the doctor pronounced my trouble chronic inflammation of the stomach and bowels. Since that time I have been subject to the fainting spells and at other times to fluttering of the heart and a feeling as though I was smothering. My general health was very bad and I was weak and trembling."

"I had seen Dr. Williams' Pink Pills mentioned in the newspapers and decided to try them. When I began taking the pills I was so run-down in strength that I could hardly do any housework. Now I could walk ten miles if necessary. Both my husband and myself think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the best medicine made and we always recommend the pills to our friends."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood and give strength and tone to every part of the body. They have cured serious disorders of the blood and nerves, such as rheumatism, sciatica, anemia, nervousness, headaches, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance and many forms of weakness in either sex. They are sold by all druggists or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

DEFIANCE STARCH never sticks to the iron.

Mount Holly, N. J.—Many a mother has saved her child from death. Here is a child who has saved her mother from death—death under the grinding wheels of a locomotive tearing along the rails at 60 miles an hour.

The child is 12-year-old Katie Johnson; the mother, Mrs. William Johnson. If it hadn't been for little Katie Mrs. Johnson would be in her grave now and Katie a motherless little schoolgirl. But Katie kept her wits where another child might have lost them.

The train was the five o'clock mail from Philadelphia. It was behind time. The engineer was trying to catch up to his schedule, so he pulled the throttle out to the last notch. He took a chance on the curve near this city and was about to take the bridge at top speed when he was horrified to see a little girl standing on the tracks, not 200 yards away.

She was tearing along toward the on-coming train, waving something. It was red. The engineer knew.

Stopped Just in Time.
He threw over the throttle and jammed down the brakes—the child's signal meant danger. The heavy train came to a stop with such a shock that all the passengers were thrown from their seats in the coaches. The pilot of the locomotive wasn't 29 feet from the little girl when the wheels stopped grinding along the rails.

"What's the matter?" cried the engineer, jumping down from his seat in the cab, followed by his fireman.

The passengers piled out, too, curious to know. There in front of them stood a little girl, waving her red muffer still, right in the path of the giant locomotive that would have ground her to pieces had it gone two rods further.

"Quick, come quick!" she cried, for answer.

Then she started to run back over the tracks, followed by the train crew and scores of the passengers. When they got to the bridge they knew what the matter was.

Woman Caught Between Ties.

There on the bridge, which the train would have crossed in five seconds more, they found a woman, badly hurt. She had tried to walk across the bridge and had slipped, falling between the ties. There she was tightly wedged. Her head and shoulders protruded above the ties. Any locomotive that crossed would have decapitated her instantly. And she was so tightly stuck in between the ties that had any train passed over, there would have been no chance for escape.

It was Katie's mother.

"I fell," she gasped, "while Katie and I were crossing the bridge on the way to town. I was caught fast."

Gently the train hands and some of the passengers pulled Mrs. Johnson out of her perilous position. Then they found that her left leg had been fractured. She never could have helped herself; she would have been killed instantly.

Katie Not Excited.

The women passengers turned to little Katie, who didn't seem to think she had done anything out of the ordinary. There she was, standing on the bridge trying to comfort her mother, who was suffering intense pain from her broken leg. The women covered her with kisses, which Katie didn't seem to relish, because she was excited over seeing that somebody would get a carriage to take her mother home.

The carriage was called and injured Mrs. Johnson was taken home, glad that she had suffered only a broken leg.

But after they got back to the cars the train hands began to tell stories of old railway men who had forgotten to wave anything red when to do it meant saving lives.

Katie is a slight child with flaxen hair, cold steady blue eyes, and clear waxen pink complexion. She has about her an air of one who thinks and acts quickly and with fearless resolution.

How Accident Occurred.

"We all had been to Philadelphia that day," said Mrs. Johnson. "I had with me a little four-year-old boy, Herbert Durand, and Katie. When we got back to Mount Holly I was pretty tired and thought I would walk home the shortest way. This led me over the bridge near the station. The children were ahead of me but a short distance, and were getting over the bridge nicely. We walked on a plank that runs across the middle of the bridge. I was about half way across, I think, when my foot slipped off this plank and caused me to fall, knocking down little Herbert, and nearly rolling him into the creek. After I had put him on his feet I started to get up, and in doing so made a misstep that plunged both my feet and then my body between two ties, until only my head and shoulders were above the bridge."

"I saved myself from dropping into the creek below by spreading out my arms when I felt myself going down."

Child Thought Quickly.

"I screamed as I fell and this attracted the attention of Katie, who was a little distance ahead of me. She came running back and taking hold of one arm tried to help me up, but I could not lift myself enough to get out. While I was thinking what to do, whether I should drop into the creek below or try some other means of getting loose, I found Katie had left me and started for the station for help."

"She had gone but a few steps when I heard a whistle, and saw Katie, white as a sheet, with big tears in her eyes, give one look at me and then turn about and fairly fly across the bridge up the track toward the train that was just visible around a curve. I could not understand what Katie intended to do to help me, but somehow I had absolute confidence that the child would save my life."

The Mother's Agony.

"Hardly had she gone off the bridge than she snatched from her neck a red muffer that she wore and waved it frantically at the engineer, at the same time planting herself in the middle of the track, apparently with the belief that if the flag did not stop the engine she would. When I saw this I looked at the engine for an instant, and not being able to see that the train was slowing down my blood turned hot and cold by turns, and I shut my eyes, determined that I would not move, for I knew that if the engine ran past Katie and her signal it meant that death had come to her, and might just as well come to me."

"In that moment I lived over a good many years, before I realized that the train had stopped and I was being lifted from danger."

"I remember thinking of an accident which I saw several years ago on this very bridge, when an old man was killed there by a fast train. I re-

SPREAD THE LIGHT

WORK OF A NOBLE MISSIONARY
AMONG CANNIBALS.

For Forty-Nine Years, in Almost Constant Peril of His Life, Dr. Paton Labored in the New Hebrides.

The death of Rev. John Gibson Paton, the missionary apostle to the New Hebrides, in his eighty-third year, was reported by cable from Canterbury, Australia. In 1858 Dr. Paton decided to go to the New Hebrides because he felt that "in a religious sense it was the darkest place in the world." For 49 years he worked among the natives of the islands, and few men have had a career so full of thrilling adventures, hairbreadth escapes and dreadful tragedy as his.

Tanna, the island on which he first landed, was inhabited by cannibals of most ferocious description. At first he had the companionship of his young wife and their little son, but a few months after their arrival both died of fever, and he was left to fight for his life and his religion alone.

Forty times the natives tried to kill him, and 40 times they failed. Six other missionaries who went to assist him in the work were murdered. The islands were visited by British warships and other vessels, and many times Dr. Paton was urged to leave Tanna and seek refuge on some other island where Christianity was beginning to make headway, or in New Zealand.

But he always refused. To him the howling cannibals who at times were literally thirsting for his blood, were "his dear benighted Tannese," and with a heroism remarkable even in the missionary field, he remained at his post.

His escapes from death were almost miraculous. More than once he and his few helpers were besieged in the mission house by the entire population of the island, and death seemed certain.

On one occasion his dog saved him, sometimes his empty revolver frightened his assailants, and the fear the natives had of his "Jehovah God" whom he invoked more than once, proved his salvation.

A friendly chief once presented Dr. Paton with a finely polished wooden spoon. Natives he subsequently met would not believe that Dr. Paton had dared to visit this warrior. He showed them the spoon, and they fled for their lives. Then the missionary learned that his spoon was only used at cannibal feasts, and by the chief himself.

Gradually, however, the fruits of his unceasing work began to make themselves apparent, and a few years ago the number of Christians in the New Hebrides was estimated at 18,000 out of a total population of 60,000. Not the least part of his work was the translation of the Bible into 20 different dialects for the use of the many different tribes on the islands.

Ten years after the death of his first wife he married again, and not many years ago his son was shot at by a hostile tribe and narrowly escaped death.

His visits to England were few and far between. His last was in 1901, and during his brief stay of two months the stalwart figure of the white haired snow bearded old man with the charming smile was seen on many platforms.

Resourceful.

Detective Gumshoe (old school)—Let this man could not possibly have committed the crime!

Detective Bludgeon (new school)—What of that?

"Well—er—"

"Of course he could not possibly have committed the crime. Do you imagine I'm looking for something easy? No, sir. I propose to show the world what my method will do. I will extort a confession from the fellow, and I shall convict him, and send him to the gallows, in spite of his innocence, the best lawyers money can procure and a unanimous public sentiment. I, sir, am a detective, not a mere opportunist, who waits for the favorable breeze to carry him to success."

The old-style detective, realizing his hopeless inferiority, was speechless with shame and chagrin.—Puck.

Americans Profane.

Dr. Madison C. Peters in his sermon in the Majestic theater declared that profanity was New York's most popular sin. "In fact," he said, "the Americans are the profane people in the world."

"A distinguished missionary from India, upon his return to America, heard a man using profane language, and accosting him, said: 'This boy was born and brought up in a heathen land, but in all his life he never heard a man blaspheme until now.'"

"This is a utilitarian age. We ask, 'What's in it for me?'"

Men tell me that they don't mean anything by their profanity. When people are awake and do things without meaning to do them they give visible signs of insanity.—New York American.

Collision Not Inevitable.

"If two cars go in opposite directions at great speed on the same track what is the result?"

"Collision."

"Not necessarily. You know they might be going away from each other."

TIRED BACKS.

The kidneys have a great work to do in keeping the blood pure. When they get out of order it causes backache, headaches, dizziness, languor and distressing urinary troubles. Keep the kidneys well and all these sufferings will be saved you. Mrs. S. A. Moore, proprietor of a restaurant at Waterville, Me., says: "Before using Doan's Kidney Pills I suffered everything from kidney troubles for a year and a half. I had pain in the back and head, and almost continuous in the loins and felt weary all the time. A few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills brought great relief, and I kept on taking them until in a short time I was cured. I think Doan's Kidney Pills are wonderful."

SARSAPARILLA TIME.

Make Your Own Sarsaparilla or Spring Blood Medicine.

Mix one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake well in a bottle and take one teaspoonful after meals and again at bedtime. Any good druggist can supply these ingredients.

This is said to be a splendid Spring Blood Tonic and system renovator because of its gentle action in restoring the kidneys to normal activity, forcing them to filter from the blood all impure matter and acids, destroying micro-organisms which produce ill health and sour blood.

Everyone should take something to cleanse the blood at this time of year, and the above simple prescription is the most highly indorsed of the hundreds of home remedies generally used.

Mix this yourself, then you will know what you are taking.

Sheep Raising in Australia.

The greatest industry of Australia is sheep raising, mainly for the sake of the wool, but also in part, of course, for the meat. Australia now ranks second among the great sheep-raising countries, Argentina being first with 92,000,000 sheep, Australia second with 72,000,000, and Russia third with 70,000,000. Only a few years ago Australia was first, possessing no less than 106,260,000 head of sheep. That was in 1891. Prolonged droughts were the cause of the destruction of many millions of Australian sheep, but since 1902 there has been an annual gain. Yet these sheep were not indigenous to Australia. They were first introduced in 1797, being of the Spanish merino species.

Great German Socialist.

Herr Bebel, the leader of the German socialists, who has been so much in evidence of late, is a wheelwright by trade. Although entirely self-educated, he is one of the finest orators and debaters in the fatherland and, distasteful as his views may be to the reichstag, whenever he addresses the assembly he is certain of having a large and attentive audience. In such esteem is he held by the socialists that millions will obey his will without thinking whether they are doing right or wrong. Herr Bebel neither drinks nor smokes, and besides being a celebrity in the political world has gained some fame as a writer.

FIND OUT

The Kind of Food That Will Keep You Well.

The true way is to find out what is best to eat and drink, and then cultivate a taste for those things instead of poisoning ourselves with improper, indigestible food, etc.

A conservative Mass. woman writes: "I have used Grape-Nuts 5 years for the young and for the aged; in sickness and in health; at first following directions carefully, later in a variety of ways as my taste and judgment suggested."

But its most special, personal benefit has been a substitute for meat, and served dry with cream when rheumatic troubles made it important for me to give up the 'coffee habit.'"

"Served in this way with the addition of a cup of hot water and a little fruit it has been used at my morning meal for six months, during which time my health has much improved, nerves have grown steadier, and a gradual decrease in my comfort." CARE OF THE SICK ROOM.

Above All Things the Walls Should Be Kept Dry.

When the bedroom becomes a sick room there is an added reason why extreme precautions should be used to keep the room in a thoroughly sanitary condition.

Above all things, the bedroom should never be damp. It should be nice and dry, always warm and comfortable in winter, cool and airy in summer, and bright and sunny some parts of the day.

If there is any suspicion of dampness in a bedroom it is probably due, if there is wallpaper on the wall, to the absorption of water by the paper which frequently acts as a blotting paper and holds quantities of water in it.

The use of wallpaper on walls is to be deplored; it means disease, ill health and unhappiness. It is frequently the cause of lung trouble, not only because of its dampness but also because of its power to retain infection of many kinds.

The desired method of treating a bedroom wall is to tint it for the alabastine wall is a perfect wall. It never flakes off, chips or peels. It absorbs moisture and expels it, it opens the pores of the plaster and makes a room livable and breathable.

The floor in the bedroom should have light, cleanable, dainty rugs that can be easily shaken and a floor that is thoroughly oiled or varnished, that will not absorb moisture. The cracks in the floor should be thoroughly filled and covered. Woodwork in the bedroom should be attended to carefully, window sills should be thoroughly varnished or waxed, and the window casings kept in perfect order. The doors should be wiped off frequently as also should be all the standing woodwork in the bedroom, as the presence of dust on woodwork is a menace to health as well as an evidence of poor housekeeping.

Losing one's self on Mont Blanc will soon be counted among the vanished industries. In recent years a number of fine refuges have been built in various parts of the mountain by the Alpine clubs of England, France and other countries and by private individuals. These have made it almost impossible for a man having a bump of locality of average size to be lost, in spite of heavy mists and blinding snowstorms caused by sudden changes of temperature.

Women Avoid Operations

When a woman suffering from female trouble is told that an operation is necessary, it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the hospital, the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart.

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after an operation has been decided upon as the only cure. The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who by taking made from native roots and herbs, have escaped serious operations, as evidenced by Miss Rose Moore's case, of 307 W. 26th St., N. Y. She writes:—

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of the very worst form of female trouble and I wish to express to you my deepest gratitude. I suffered intensely for two years so that I was unable to attend to my duties and was a burden to my family. I doctored and doctored with only temporary relief and constantly objecting to an operation which I was advised to undergo. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it cured me of the terrible trouble and I am now in better health than I have been for many years."

This and other such cases should encourage every woman to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before she submits to an operation.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women
Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised.

VOTING PLACES LOCATED AND OFFICERS SELECTED

It proved no trivial task for the Democratic County Central committee, that of drawing the voting precincts, locating the voting places, and selecting the election officers for the county primary election. The work really began Saturday morning and the committee was in session till eleven at night. The work of defining the voting precincts was particularly perplexing, and remains yet to be carefully checked over and corrected. The descriptions of the precincts will appear in Tuesday's News.

There was adopted a resolution, introduced by W. H. L. Campbell and seconded by Mr. Maharg, to the effect that all Democratic candidates for county and precinct offices shall on or before April 20th pay to the Secretary of the central committee the respective sums heretofore assessed against them; said moneys to be expended under direction of the committee.

A committee was appointed to contract for the printing of the 6,000 tickets and notices necessary for the primary election. The sealed bid plan was followed, bids being solicited from the two Ada newspapers. The bid of The Ada News proving to be much the lowest, the committee promptly awarded the contract to that paper.

The polling places, twenty-nine in number, and officers selected are as follows:

SPLENDID METHODIST CHURCH IS FORMALLY DEDICATED

The dedicatory services at the new Methodist church Sunday were most beautiful and impressive, just such as the splendor of the edifice demanded, just such as fully to gratify the proud anticipations of the congregation and the faithful pastor.

The programme, as published in Saturday's News—consisting of three services—was carried out with marked success; it was a day of dedication full of beauty and of solemnity.

As the congregation early filed in for the morning service they were filled with a reverential awe as they gazed upon the interior of the edifice in all its finished magnificence. Before the opening song the spacious auditorium was filled with people and chairs had to be placed in the vacant floor space.

Both morning and evening the sermon was delivered by the Rev. Dr. W. F. McMurray, church extension secretary of the M. E. Church, South, who came all the way from Louisville, Ky., to be present on this occasion. In the morning, after the preliminary part consisting of song, prayer, and appropriate scripture readings, Dr. McMurray delivered a masterful discourse, taking as a theme the completion of Solomon's Temple, that illustrious model of church building and dedication. It is regrettable that lack of space forbids the publication of the sermon in full. It was a classic from beginning to end. Physically and intellectually a giant, Dr. McMurray, deeply consecrated to the cause, is commensurately a tower of strength in the spiritual realm.

The speaker began with the premise that "man is a worshipping being," distinguished from the rest of God's creatures by his "religious instincts which demand a place of worship." "The morals of men are best preserved and conserved by a visible shrine." "The joy of an accomplished purpose," as exemplified in the exultation of the great builder, Solomon, over the completion of his temple, was dwelt upon. Several fine illustrations of this

"joy of completion" were given and the local congregation were praised for having brought their temple to such beautiful completion.

"The beginning of everything good is in God." As God, years before the building of Solomon's Temple, spoke unto David, the father, so to this day he speaks unto his servants and impresses them with good enterprises.

The necessity for the new church building and its various sacred uses were indicated. In conclusion there was emphasized the building's most sublime use—a place wherein sinners are to be saved.

After the sermon Dr. McMurray announced that the church, complete, had cost $15,550, that of this amount there remained unpaid $2,910, which must be raised. With inimitable tact he proceeded to "take up a collection" with the result that $2,305 was subscribed.

At 3 o'clock there was held another service in which other pastors took part.

In the evening Dr. McMurray preached again an impressive sermon. His theme was "Faithfulness," the chief attribute of Moses, who in that respect was immortalized as the prototype of the Savior.

Not quite satisfied with the morning's collection, the powerful and persistent secretary announced some more money must be forthcoming before the formal dedication could take place. There were additional responses to the amount of $379. Some of the brethren "stood good" for the remaining deficit of $228, whereupon Dr. McMurray proceeded with the formal ceremony of dedicating the church.

Much praise and gratitude are due Dr. McMurray for his zealous work for the Ada church and for the inspiration of his sermons. Altogether it was a glorious day for the cause in Ada. The other churches of the city held no services, but joined with the Methodist brethren in their great "joy of completion."

DELEGATE WEAVER OFF TO GUTHRIE FOR THE FINISH

Delegate Carlton Weaver left Monday afternoon to complete this week his labors in Guthrie. The Constitutional convention will reconvene there Tuesday for the purpose of hearing read the final drafts of the Constitution formally adopting it as a whole and affixing the signatures. The session may last three or four days.

While the main subjects usually treated of in Constitutions are practically complete, the primary election provision is yet incomplete and is to be a part of the fundamental law.

In addition to the primary provision is the general election ordinance appointing a supreme election board, the enforcement of which the federal district court at Guthrie ruled against a week ago in the cases brought from Greer and Woods counties. While no one may speak authoritatively, the convention will probably withdraw its ordinance, recognize the existing supreme election board of Oklahoma, which is made operative by the enabling act, and appoint election boards in all of the new counties of Oklahoma and Indian Territories.

By special ordinance it is expected the convention will divide the new counties into commissioner districts and municipal townships as recommended by the respective local delegates, also will appoint, as recommended by the delegates, county boards of election commissioners to divide the counties into voting precincts and locate polling places.

Mr. Weaver expects to recommend for Pontotoc Messrs. T. J. Chambliss, Tip Denton and J. J. Burton, for such board, and probably they will adopt the division work of the Democratic county central committee completed Saturday night to govern the primary election May 23.

MAN THROWN OUT AND KILLED IN RUNAWAY

Buster Elliott, of Allen, was killed in a runaway Sunday morning about 9 o'clock. While preparing to make a drive into the country the team became frightened and uncontrollable. They ran away, throwing Mr. Elliott out violently against the ground. He was run over by the vehicle and received such serious injuries that in a short time he passed away.

The man is a brother-in-law of James Smith who lives in North Ada.

FURNITURE AND COFFINS

A Native Orchestra of Java.

The nine instruments seen here produce only two or three notes apiece. They are played by swinging the frames in such a way as to slide the whistle-shaped sections of bamboo back and forth over the openings in the horizontal bamboo pipe. The result is of course something very queer to western ears, but really not unpleasant. Mr. James Rialton of Maplewood, N. J. after photographing these players bought this entire set of instruments for the equivalent of fifteen cents and brought them home to his private museum.

found that it could not be operated with a small force as had been estimated. A much larger force had to be engaged and as a result the expense increased.

Then the machinery gave out and finally graft was discovered. Politics had crept into the plant and politicians used it as an easy berth for their friends.

One case was discovered in which a politician sold the garbage collectors old horses and wagons at exorbitant prices in consideration for getting them the positions. The collectors in turn went outside the city collected garbage at so much a barrel pocketed the fee and brought the stuff into the city to be burned at the city plant at city expense.

An investigation also showed that the coal bills at the plant were enormous and inquiry developed that the city was footing the fuel bills of a neighborhood that was using city coal to heat the homes. Finally the machinery gave out and the plant was closed. Just now the city is burying its garbage.

The proposition of the Poolford physician who was formerly health commissioner there seems to be a good way out of the dilemma and it is probable that his offer will be accepted. The council has written to a number of eastern cities and most of them favor reduction of a incineration. Dr. Poolford's health commission is opposed to reduction and for that reason the council sent out a number of letters to cities in order to secure information as to the best method. Dr. Boyd says that the possibilities from garbage are much more than most people believe. He says that fertilizer and grease alone make garbage profitable to handle but under the new amendment law the manufacture of fertilizer and alcohol will greatly reduce the cost of the disposal of refuse.

WON BY VOICE OF A GIRL

New York Man Weds a Lowell (Mass.) Telephone Operator

Lowell, Mass.—Falling in love with his voice which he heard over the wire and then with the girl herself, Donald W. Woodward of New York city has married Florence M. in a pretty telephone operator of this city.

The wedding took place at the residence of Rev. A. St. John Chamberlain of St. Anne's Episcopal church. A number of their friends knew of it but the news quickly spread and when they took a train for Boston en route for New York 100 young women were at the station to give them a send-off. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Thomas Ingalls of West Fourth street. Her father is dead. She has a brother teaching in the Philippine islands. She herself is a graduate of the Lowell high school class of 1903. She has been in the local telephone exchange for three years.

His Wooden Leg a Storeroom.

Contained Whisky, Money, Burglar Tools and Other Things

Philadelphia—How a wooden leg for a long time enabled John Woods to lug cell locks to scorn and acquire a record as a jailbreaker was told in the city hall police court by Special Policeman Spencer. The leg did not figure as a factor in the prosecution of Woods being held on the charge of stealing a ring belonging to John Gavner of 2813 Agate street.

Spencer said that Woods was a Jew and by trade. His wooden leg served him until recently when the police found it was not only a means of locomotion but a storeroom for lock picks, false keys, liquor and money.

Twice Woods had sawed his way out of cells in the Trenton avenue police station in a way that mystified the turnkeys and house sergeants. Spencer said Woods was placed in a cell. An hour later he was uproariously drunk. He was taken out of his cell and searched all but his wooden leg and then locked up again. Within another hour he was again detected cutting the lock from his cell door with a fine saw.

The wooden leg supplied the key to the mystery. It had been hollowed out and in this cavity were found a canteen of whisky, a roll of money, a set of fine saws and several keys.

After that Spencer said Woods was never locked in a cell until his false leg had been unstrapped and sawed. The phony leg, said Spencer, who seemed to have his history at his tongue's end and had also figured as a weapon in assaulting many a policeman.

Woods only smiled when Magistrate Koehrsen held him on the large charge.

To Work Sapphire Mines

Preparations are being made to work the sapphire mines at Yogo gulch extensively. Yogo lake which is in Montana is four miles long and it is estimated that the workable rock will approximate 10,000,000 cubic yards. While the stones found there are comparatively small they are unusually brilliant without flaws and of beautiful tints. Their shape is generally of such character that the cuts or smaller ones are well suited for bearings of watches and for this purpose they need little cutting.

GAIN IN POPULATION

CENSUS FIGURES SHOW MARVELOUS GROWTH IN SIX YEARS.

Nearly 8,000,000 More People in United States in 1906 Than in 1900—New York Still Largest City, Chicago Second.

Washington—The population of continental United States according to the estimates of the census bureau was 83,941,510 in 1906. This is 7,946,975 more than the population in 1900. The estimated population of the United States including Alaska and insular possessions in 1906 was 93,182,240. The growth in population in continental United States from 1900 to 1906 was 1,367,315.

The population of continental United States in 1905 as obtained by adding to the returns of the states which took a census in that year the estimated population of the remaining states and territories is 82,575,195, an increase over 1900 of 6,579,610 or 8.7 per cent.

Computed on the basis of the estimate the density of population of continental United States in 1906 was 28 persons per square mile as compared with 26 in 1900.

Chicago remains the second city in the union in point of population. New York being first with 1,111,043. The figures for Chicago are 1,019,187. In 1900 it was 1,098,775. The gain in six years therefore is 350,610. New York is twice as large as Chicago. Six years ago its population was 1,437,202 so that its increase has been 665,841.

Philadelphia has 1,411,735 against 1,336,577 six years ago. St. Louis has passed Boston in the race. The Missouri metropolis having 649,320 in 1900 and 728,190 in 1906. Six years ago Boston had 700,083 while in 1906 the brawn city had 602,278.

Illinois is the third state of the union in point of population. In 1906 the census bureau estimates that it was populated by 5,418,670 persons as against 4,815,000 in 1900. New York is leader with 8,226,980 then comes Pennsylvania with 5,928,575, Ohio 4,418,677, Indiana 2,710,598.

The rapid growth of urban population is noteworthy. The total estimated population of incorporated places having 9,000 or more inhabitants exclusive of San Francisco and Los Angeles, Cal., is 28,466,624 for 1906 in increase over 1900 of 3,912,188 or 15.5 per cent. While the estimated population of the United States exclusive of these cities showed an increase of 4,480,000 or only 8.8 per cent.

The 55 cities with an estimated population of 50,000 or more in 1906 had a total estimated population of 11,771,167 an increase of 2,768,867 or 16.3 per cent over that reported at the twelfth census.

The states that took a census in 1900 are Florida, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Wyoming. In Michigan the census is taken in the years ending with a 4.

The population returns for these states were 26,207,877 an increase since 1900 of 1,901,572 or 7.8 per cent. For the remaining states and territories the population for 1906 as determined by the method adopted by the bureau was 5,257,039 an increase over 1900 of 444,040 or 8.4 per cent. The population of the 11 states making an enumeration would be 26,204,762 a difference of only 0.2 per cent from the actual returns.

PENSION TO POOR PARENTS

Ohio Official Proposes New Method of Preventing Child Labor

Columbus, O.—State Shop Inspector Morgan in his annual report submitted to the governor makes the novel proposition that the state of Ohio set aside a fund to be devoted to paying parents in poor circumstances who are now compelled to let their young children work in factories to enable them to take the children from the factories and put them in school.

Gov. Harris is inclined to look on the proposal with favor and may recommend a law to the legislature covering the matter.

Mr. Morgan says that Ohio leads all the states in child labor legislation but he is openly opposed to giving employers discretion to employ children where parents need their wages. Instead he suggests a school pension law by which the parents may be paid an equivalent sum out of the public treasury and the child sent to school.

Burglar Breaks Into House, Bathes, Sleeps and Then Robs

Stamford, Conn.—After breaking into the home of two wealthy maiden sisters the Misses Frances and Cora Smith and finding it untenanted, a burglar calmly took a sleep in one of the rooms before selecting the articles which he wished to steal.

He set the alarm clock for five o'clock. When he awoke he took a bath, ate a hearty breakfast and then commenced a leisurely inspection of the valuable articles in the house.

The Smith sisters are in the south, and when the caretaker found the broken window in the kitchen he ran to summon the police. While an officer was climbing through the broken window the burglar walked out of the front door with several hundred dollars worth of booty and escaped in the direction of Greenwich unseen by the officer.

RAISING CANARY BIRDS.

GERMANY CONTROLS WORLD'S MARKET OF SINGERS

Exceptionally Good Ones Command Fancy Prices—How the Young Are Trained—Are Very Sensitive to Drafts

Washington—Writing from Valdeburg Consul Frank S. Hannah says concerning the business of raising canary birds in the Harz mountains.

The breeding and selling of canary birds in Germany which has reached such proportions that it now controls the markets of the world is conservatively estimated of a value of $200,000. In St. Andreisburg alone 50,000 canaries are yearly raised for export. For an exceptionally good singer and breeder at least 300 marks ($71.40) must be paid and 100 marks ($23.80) is often paid for a good so-called Vorsenger, a bird used to teach the younger canaries to sing by example. The normal price for good canaries varies from $2.86 to $8.57. Absolute quiet and undisturbed intimate relations exist between the breeder and his birds. Similar conditions are attained by the Malabar breeders. Many of the so-called Harz canaries which are exported to the United States are bred in the city of Magdeburg where some of the best singers are produced.

The training of the young birds to sing correctly is one of the most important and laborious features of the breeder's activity. The young birds learning by imitation for the most part require but singing as well as good and while it is the plan of the breeder that the birds should only hear the good singing of the Vorsenger, some of them naturally chirp and whistle in an unpleasant manner and care must be taken that these birds be removed before the other birds have acquired the same bad habits and are rendered unsaleable. The art of the breeder lies in being able to detect at an early age developing the same to its highest point of perfection in its particular line. These birds are divided into classes and kept in separate rooms, those having harsh and shrill voices being often placed in cages of cages where instead of singing they are forced to listen to other good singers. Through which their faults are often overcome. The better singers after passing a certain stage where their habits are established and they do not require the close daily watching of the breeder are taken into a room reserved for the best singers. The elementary training for the singer is generally finished by the end of November and the singing is at its best at the beginning of the year.

beginning of January and again after the mating time. Canaries are very sensitive to drafts and some singers, the results of years of careful breeding and training have been ruined by a few moments exposure by an open window.

The exports of canaries from this district for the calendar year 1905 was $27,685 and for the calendar year 1906 $40,048.

NEGROES AFRAID OF COMET.

Report in Indian Territory Towns That Earth's End is Near

Muskogee, I. T.—The ignorant negroes throughout Indian territory are greatly excited by the reported approach of a destructive comet. In many places they have quit work and are assembling nightly in churches and holding religious services.

It is reported at Fort Gibson and at many other points along the Arkansas river where there are large negro settlements that the comet is the only thing talked about and the negroes believe that the world is coming to an end. This condition has reached such proportions that the Times Democrat, a local newspaper telegraphed Prof. P. J. See of More Island asking his opinion about the comet. His reply was:

The comet is a ghost of the air. It is going from the earth instead of toward it. There is no danger of contact.

A great many Indians have also become alarmed over the agitation but they are not demonstrative about it as are the negroes. At Westville it is reported that meetings are being held nightly and prayers offered. These reports come from the smaller towns and rural communities. There is not much excitement among the negroes of the larger town although it is understood that in nearly every church service Sunday reference was made to it.

Would Manage Whole Town.

Armour, S. D.—One man may run this town—not a political boss but a business manager. J. C. Cantonwine is with other taxpayers disgusted with the city debt and high assessments. He will put up a bond guaranteeing that if given the management of the city's affairs he will demonstrate that a town and city can be run profitably when conducted along business lines.

Some of the aldermen look askance at the proposition but the taxpayers generally would like to try it. Armour, has 2,000 inhabitants and is a thriving town but it has a bonded debt of $10,000 and city warrants have to be sold at a discount.

WATER CURE FOR THE INSANE

Innovation Will Be Introduced at Philadelphia Almshouse

Philadelphia—Treatment of the insane by water with the idea of washing away insanity germs will be an innovation in the new quarters for the insane at the Philadelphia almshouse which will be opened soon. Dr. Copeland, director of the department of health is confident of the success of the movement.

The plant is designed primarily for the treatment of cases of acute mania by a system of bathing by which the body of the patient is kept completely submerged in running water for as long a time as is deemed necessary to effect a cure. The plant in its present form is composed of a number of rooms of which two are specially set aside for this kind of treatment.

In each bathroom a hammock is arranged on which the patient's body rests. Above are hot and cold water faucets with a thermometer attached for gauging the temperature. There is a special appliance for emptying the tub instantly. The water generally is kept at a temperature of 100 degrees and is kept continually flowing.

The patient remains in the hammock for a period varying from four to eight hours at a time. At the end of each period he is taken from the bath and placed on a cot rubbed down, and allowed to rest for half an hour.

He then is returned to the swinging hammock and immersed in water. The only purpose for which he is taken from the water is an occasional rest. His meals are given to him in the bath.

The head which rests on a circular rubber cushion is the only portion of the body not submerged.

A Great Telegraph School.

That Parsons has one of the best Telegraph Schools in the country is evidenced by the fact that railroad companies are seeking its graduates. During the past week this school had ten more calls for operators than it was able to fill at salaries ranging from $40.00 to $100.00 per month. The demand made upon this school is caused partly by the shortage of operators and partly because the students from the Parsons School of Telegraphy are qualified to hold positions as operators and are trained for regular railroad work.

Young people if you wish to better your conditions it will pay you to correspond with this school and consider a course in telegraphy, it will pay large dividends on the investment.

For full particulars address Parsons School of Telegraphy, Parsons, Kansas.

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the common troiler of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusiness-like habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

TWAIN'S FRIENDS WERE MANY.

Little Jean Thought He Had Almost Reached the Limit.

We had recently arrived in Berlin, and had begun housekeeping in a furnished apartment. One morning at breakfast a vast card arrived—an invitation. To be precise, it was a command from the emperor of Germany to come to dinner. During several months I had encountered socially, on the continent, men bearing lofty titles; and all this while Jean was becoming more and more impressed, and awed, and subdued, by these imposing events, for she had not been abroad before, and they were new to her—wonders out of dreamland turned into realities. The imperial card was passed from hand to hand, around the table, and examined with interest; when it reached Jean she exhibited excitement and emotion, but for a time was quite speechless; then she said: "Why, papa, if it keeps going on like this, pretty soon there won't be anybody for you to get acquainted with but God." It was not complimentary to think I was not acquainted in that quarter, but she was young, and the young jump to conclusions without reflection.—North American Review.

Borrowing Trouble

Now, the very worst things that might happen, you know, are the things that don't happen at all. We flatter and worry, lamenting and sorry, in the grasp of expectancy's thrall. Apprehensive forebodings encumber our souls. Depression weighs down like a pull. So we wear a long face with a very poor grace. And then nothing happens at all. When we prophesy storms it is sure to clear off. When our money's gone, something comes in. And the thoughts of those bills which have given us chills. Every month shouldn't make us grow thin.

For they fly down the past like the leaves on the blast. We settle up, somehow, and why do we bother and fret over what we forget. Before many days have passed by? We were not carried off by that terrible cough. And in fact, 'twasn't much, come to think—All our pains and our aches and our dreadful mistakes. Why, they too have slid over the brink of the gulf that forgets; yet we still write our hands. Predicting some ruinous fall. Approaching disaster we hail as our mariners. And then nothing happens at all. —Elliott Walker, in Spare Moments.

THE LITTLE HEROINE WHO SAVED MAMMA

MRS. JOHNSON

Mount Holly, N. J.—Many a mother has saved her child from death. Here is a child who has saved her mother from death—death under the grinding wheels of a locomotive tearing along the rails at 60 miles an hour. The child is 12-year-old Katie Johnson; the mother, Mrs. William Johnson. It had been for little Katie, Mrs. Johnson would be in her grave now and Katie a motherless little schoolgirl. But Katie kept her wits where another child might have lost them. The train was the five o'clock mail from Philadelphia. It was behind time. The engineer was trying to catch up to his schedule, so he pulled the throttle out to the last notch. He took a chance on the curve near this city and was about to take the bridge at top speed when he was horrified to see a little girl standing on the tracks, not 200 yards away. She was tearing along toward the oncoming train, waving something. It was red. The engineer knew. Stopped Just in Time. He threw over the throttle and jammed down the brakes—the child's signal meant danger. The heavy train came to a stop with a sickening shock that all the passengers were thrown from their seats in the coaches. The pilot of the locomotive wasn't 20 feet from the little girl when the wheels stopped grinding along the rails. "What's the matter?" cried the engineer, jumping down from his seat in the cab, followed by his fireman. The passengers piled out, too, curious to know. There in front of them stood a little girl, waving her red muffer still, right in the path of the giant locomotive that would have ground her to pieces had it gone two rods further. "Quick, come quick!" she cried, for answer. Then she started to run back over the tracks, followed by the train crew and scores of the passengers. When they got to the bridge they knew what the matter was. Woman Caught Between Ties. The train on the bridge, which the train would have crossed in five seconds more, they found a woman, badly hurt. She had tried to walk across the bridge and had slipped, falling between the ties. There she was tightly wedged. Her head and shoulders protruded above the ties. Any locomotive that crossed would have decapitated her instantly. And she was so tightly stuck in between the ties that had any train passed over, there would have been no chance for escape. It was Katie's mother. "I fell," she gasped, "while Katie and I were crossing the bridge on the way to town. I was caught last." Gently the train hands and some of the passengers pulled Mrs. Johnson out of her perilous position. Then they found that her left leg had been fractured. She never could have helped herself; she would have been killed instantly. Katie Not Excited. The woman passengers turned to little Katie, who didn't seem to think she had done anything out of the ordinary. There she was, standing on the bridge trying to comfort her mother, who was suffering intense pain from her broken leg. The women covered her with kisses, while Katie didn't seem to relish, because she was excited over seeing that somebody would get a carriage to take her mother home.

membered that his heart had fallen right near where I was standing, and that as I looked at it I could see it beat two or three times. The memory of this night came flashing over me as I waited for the train, and I think for a moment I must have fainted.

Realized Child's Bravery.

"I did not open my eyes until I heard Katie's voice at my side and felt the strong arms of the trainmen lifting me and carrying me to the station. And there I wept, I guess hysterically, for I then realized just how brave the child's act was, for I knew that when Katie started up the track waving the muffer she never intended to get off the track until she had stopped the train."

All that Katie would say about her part in averting a tragedy was: "You see, the engine had to stop, for I had a red signal. You know that always stops a train, and I waved it at the engineer because I didn't know anything else to do to make him stop. I couldn't lift mother out and so I just had to stop the train. I don't think there is anything funny in that. "No, I wasn't afraid. What should I be afraid of? Didn't I have the red muffer? Don't trains always stop when the man at the flaghouse waves a red flag? Well, then, what should I be afraid of?" That's the kind of a girl Katie is. She knew no fear. She had absolute confidence that the red flag controlled the motion of the wheels of the ponderous "iron horse" and made her mother's life perfectly safe.

EFFECT OF WOMEN VOTING

British Writer Tells of Conditions in New Zealand.

"New Zealand was the first British colony to adopt women's suffrage—as far back as 1893," says a writer in the London Chronicle. "The New Zealand woman was given universal adult suffrage. Though she had not sought it, she immediately used it. Out of 140,000 women 109,000 had placed themselves on the register in a few months, and 90,000 voted in the general election of November, 1893. They voted peacefully and in order during the day while the men were at work, and left the booths to the men in the evening. They have voted with similar regularity and orderliness ever since. How do the women use their powers? Very calmly, by all accounts. Roughly, women make very much the same use of the franchise as do men. The result has not produced either a new heaven or a new hell. Men have not been deprived of their rights. There has been no disorder or unseemly behavior—no strange revolution in dress or manners. Enfranchisement has led neither to divided households nor divided skirts. Families, as a matter of fact, generally vote on the same side. But on the other hand, there is a general agreement that family life has become brighter, that husbands and wives have more subjects in common to talk about, and that women are really setting themselves to study and watch public affairs."

The effects, in fact, have been rather social than political. Women seem to be treated with more real respect—and not merely at election times. There has arisen between the sexes that sense of equality which is perhaps the only permanent and enduring social basis. Speaking generally, they have simply become citizens, whose part in public affairs is not sharply distinguished from that of men. New Zealand women have simply stepped into equality. And 14 years of political life have shown them equal to that equality. Working side by side with man, woman still keeps her place—'not like to like, but like in difference.'"

The word pictures of which colonists used to have so many given them of domestic discord, of children forgotten, husbands uncared for, dinner uncooked, dress and appearance neglected—have already almost passed from memory. It is the commonest sight to see husband, wife and grown-up children walking or driving cheerfully to the polls together. The head of the family has become a more important factor in politics than of old."

Child Thought Quickly. "I screamed as I fell and this attracted the attention of Katie, who was a little distance ahead of me. She came running back and taking hold of one arm tried to help me up, but I could not lift myself enough to get out. While I was thinking what to do, whether I should drop into the creek below or try some other means of getting loose, I found Katie had left me and started for the station, for help. "She had gone but a few steps when I heard a whistle, and saw Katie, white as a sheet, with big tears in her eyes, give one look at me and then turn about and fairly fly across the bridge up the track toward the train that was just visible around a curve. "I could not understand what Katie intended to do to help me, but somehow I had absolute confidence that the child would save my life. The Mother's Agency. "Hardly had she gone off the bridge than she snatched from her neck a red muffer that she wore and waved it frantically at the engineer, at the same time planting herself in the middle of the track, apparently with the belief that if the flag did not stop the engine she would. When I saw this I looked at the engine for an instant, and not being able to see that the train was slowing down my blood turned hot and cold by turns, and I shut my eyes, determined that I would not move, for I knew that if the engine ran past Katie and her signal it meant that death had come to her, and might just as well come to me. "In that moment I lived over a good many years, before I realized that the train had stopped and I was being lifted from danger. "I remember thinking of an accident which I saw several years ago on this very bridge, when an old man was killed there by a fast train. I remembered that his heart had fallen right near where I was standing, and that as I looked at it I could see it beat two or three times. The memory of this night came flashing over me as I waited for the train, and I think for a moment I must have fainted."

The Horse Doctor. Little Mattie flew into the house last evening very late for nursery tea, and hurried to her mother's chair. "Oh, mother," she cried, "don't scold me, for I've had such a disappointment! A horse fell down in the street and they said they were going to send for a horse doctor, so of course I had to stay. And after I waited and waited he came, and oh, mother, what do you think, it was only a man!"—Harper's.

Children Should Eat Fat. Fat is essential to the proper growth of the tissues of the nerves and brain, and is particularly important to children, as the brain enlarges rapidly during childhood. Next to butter and cream, bacon is one of the most palatable forms in which it can be given. It should not be over-cooked, as then too much of the fat is fried out. Sometimes bread soaked in bacon fat will be eaten with relish.

Ventilation by Columns. Ventilation through iron columns is an interesting feature of a mill at Preston, England. Air is drawn in at ground level, forced by fans through a water spray, heated by coils in the usual way and then distributed from subducts below the basement level to the different rooms, the iron columns having registers near their tops. Flues in the walls provide for the escape of air from these rooms.

PERIODICAL MADNESS

By ROBERT C. BROWN.

Homor Parker had never had an affair de coeur and the most singular thing about it was that Homor was 32 years old.

Love had always been somewhat of a joke to him. He had never looked the question fairly in the face and he laughed at the possibility of ever doing so.

"Love is a sort of periodical madness," he used to argue to himself. "They all get over it after a year or two and then they look sourly at the minister who was responsible for tying them up, or down, to love."

In other words, Parker was a cynic. He scoffed at love, made light of it, and boasted his impenetrability.

He was wedded to his art, and his art was music. There could never have been a better match, for Parker loved his music as himself.

One day the bachelor went to the phone to call up a friend. The line was busy, he hesitated a moment. Then he listened a little longer.

A sweet, mellow, musical voice floated over the wire. He had never before heard the like. The beauty, the fullness of that voice held him to the instrument.

"Surely," he thought, "the woman who possesses that voice must be different." And then he listened some more—the sweet voice thrilled him, filled him, and he could not get it out of his mind the whole day.

That night he patiently held the receiver to his ear for half an hour, hoping ever that the same voice would call again.

But his efforts were unrewarded and he went to bed, his brain pulsating with the discovery and his mind seeking for the owner of that voice.

The next morning he listened at the phone and again he heard the same tones. He stood entranced and listened. There was no other voice on earth like it, to Parker.

An all-consuming desire came over him as he hung up the receiver. He determined to seek out and find that voice.

A small suspicion of love came into his mind, but he laughed it aside in his hurry to assure himself that it was solely in the interests of music that he wished to find the owner of that voice.

Hurriedly putting on his hat and coat he rushed to the telephone office. There he found the names and addresses of the three parties on his line and then he returned home eagerly. They were all on his street, that voice lived within a block of him and yet he did not know its owner.

The thought maddened him, he brooded over it, rushed to the phone in hope of again hearing it—but the line was silent.

Suddenly an idea came to him. He would call up each of the houses on that line and then he could easily locate the voice.

His first attempt was unsuccessful; he excused himself by saying that he had gotten the wrong number.

Then he called up the next on his list. A sudden thrill shot through him as he heard the soft "Hello" and realized that it was addressed to him. He said nothing, he had found it, and, accordingly, he quietly hung up the receiver with a happy sigh.

"Miss Cornelia Courtland," he read from his list. "Well, that's funny, she can't live there alone, can she? But it relieves my mind on one score, anyway. She is not married!"

Again putting on his hat and coat he went out into the street and sauntered past the house which contained that voice. Then he went into a corner store and waited.

Finally a woman came from the house. His eyes fairly devoured her as she came up the street. Her dress was smart, there was no jarring of colors in what she wore, there was an artistic air about her that was appealing. To Parker she was divine.

He stood awkwardly looking into a showcase when she entered the store.

"Good morning, Mrs. Kendall, how is your aunt, Miss Courtland, today?" inquired the affable proprietor of the store.

"Somewhat better, thank you," warbled that divine voice, which Parker recognized in a moment.

His head swam, his fingers grew cold. With a compressed feeling about his chest he strode out into the open air.

Madly he rushed to his room, packed up his belongings, and moved far away from that telephone line.

A month later he sighed, as he sat before his bachelor fire, musing to himself: "Love is a sort of periodical madness, they all get over it in a year or two. By George! I hope I do."

Just a Gentle Hint. Chief Justice Fuller apparently wishes it to be known that he has no intention of resigning to make room for Mr. Taft. The chief justice recently gave a dinner, at which both the president and Mr. Taft were present. Mr. Fuller showed his guests a new portrait of himself and remarked that it made him look young. "Not a day younger than the original," said Mr. Taft, gracefully. "Thank you," said the justice, adding with what looked like just a trifle of emphasis: "I never felt better in my life."

Seamless Tubes for Boilers. It is announced that a Scotch company is about to manufacture by a new process seamless iron and steel tubes for boilers, which it is said will not corrode.

King Edward a Pigeon-Fancier. It may not be generally known that King Edward is fond of pigeon-racing, and has participated actively in it. His majesty has a big loft full of pigeons at Sandringham, where they are regularly and specially trained for long-distance races. Some years ago one of his birds won the biggest race of the year, the "Pigeon Derby," in a magnificent flight home from Lerwick.

Eczema Covered Whole Body for a Year—No Relief Until Cuticura Remedies Prove a Success.

"For a year I have had what they call eczema. I had an itching all over my body, and when I would retire for the night it would keep me awake half the night, and the more I would scratch, the more it would itch. I tried all kinds of remedies, but could get no relief."

"I used one cake of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura, and two vials of Cuticura Resolvent Pills, which cost me a dollar and twenty-five cents in all, and am very glad I tried them, for I was completely cured. Walter W. Pagniech, 207 N. Robey St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 8 and 10, 1906."

HONEST MEDICINE

TRY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR STOMACH TROUBLE.

Convincing Evidence Supported by a Guarantee That Must Convince The Most Skeptical.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a doctor's prescription, used by an eminent practitioner, and for nearly a generation known as a reliable household remedy throughout the United States. Needless to say, no advertised medicine could retain popular favor for so long a period without having great merit and it is the invaluable curative properties of the pills that have made them a standard remedy in every civilized country in the world. Added to this is the absolute guarantee that the pills contain no harmful drug, opiate, narcotic or stimulant. A recent evidence of their efficacy is found in the statement of Mrs. N. B. Wintley, of Boxley, Ark., who says:

"I had suffered for a good many years from stomach trouble. For a long time I was subject to bad spells of faintness and lack of breath accompanied by an indescribable feeling that seemed to start in my stomach. Whenever I was a little run-down or over-tired, these spells would come on. They occurred frequently but did not last very long."

"I was confined to my bed for ten weeks one time and the doctor pronounced my trouble chronic inflammation of the stomach and bowels. Since that time I have been subject to the fainting spells and at other times to fluttering of the heart and a feeling as though I was smothering. My general health was very bad and I was weak and trembling."

"I had seen Dr. Williams' Pink Pills mentioned in the newspapers and decided to try them. When I began taking the pills I was so run-down in strength that I could hardly do any housework. Now I could walk ten miles if necessary. Both my husband and myself thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the best medicine made and we always recommend the pills to our friends."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood and give strength and tone to every part of the body. They have cured serious disorders of the blood and nerves, such as rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, nervousness, headaches, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance and many forms of weakness in either sex. They are sold by all druggists or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Good Blood.

Without good blood we cannot be healthy, or live long. Plain, healthy food, moderate exercise and fresh air make good blood. Pastry, candy and the rich and dainty dishes which are considered the masterpieces of the cook's art cause numerous ailments as well as bad blood. It naturally follows that to eat nutritious wholesome food and breathe pure air would insure pure blood. There is another thing to be considered however says New York Weekly and that is the casting out of waste material that renders the blood impure. This is usually performed by the bowels. If then we would have pure blood we must see that these organs are kept active. Breathe pure air night and day being careful to wear no clothing which in the least interferes with deep breathing. Eat plain but substantial food, use a moderate quantity at regular times and absolutely nothing between meals. Keep the skin active by bathing freely of pure water and the bowels active by right food and exercise. Keep a clean conscience and a serene mind and you will have pure blood and the ruddy tint of health will glow in your cheeks.

Good Manners Dying Out?

Hurry and bridge have killed the art of polite conversation. Hurry has about correspondence of its grace. Hurry is fast trains, running the once sedate city of London into a panting mass of whirling noise, whirling wheels and evil fumes. Dainty grace, respect, and bashfulness from our midst and we are left only at the beginning of the bad example race through life. Perhaps some dusty memoirs of our period will cause the men and women of the future to say: "Those people were very punctilious and slow very sedate. That says Adeline Vane, living in the Nineteenth Century may be the opinion held in the not very far distant future when contending, reclining, crash into one another without apology and myriads of motor cars sweep over the prosaic bodies of pedestrians without inquiring if they are hurt. But there will be less difference between the people of that day and the people of ours than there is between us and the powdered, courteous gallants and dames who worthily upheld the traditions of good manners when the first gentleman in Europe was the glass of fashion and the mould of form."

Most of the tortoise shells of commerce is obtained from the hawksbill turtle which is taken chiefly in the Caribbean sea. Turtles caught in these waters vary in size from one to four and one-half feet long, with a maximum weight of 100 pounds and the average weight of shell obtained from each is from six to seven pounds. The commercial value of this shell depends upon the thickness and size of the plates rather than upon the brilliancy of the colors. The price of shell in this market fluctuates from three to six dollars a gold per pound. As the best prices are obtained in England and the largest amount of the shell shipped from these parts goes to that country. The San Blas Indians however trade a large amount of shell to coasting schooners which is partly carried to the Straits and partly to Colon.

There's a Pittsburger in New York looking for a site for a Fifth Avenue home and he thinks he has a grievance because he cannot find any vacant land for less than $100,000 a lot. Between Fifty-ninth street and Lenox library at Seventy-second street he found no available land at all and from Seventy-second to One Hundred and First street he found only 14 lots offered at prices running up to $300,000 and that is too rich even for a Pittsburger who has the price.

It has been announced that the Kell canal is to be widened at a cost of many millions in order to enable it to admit vessels of the Dreadnaught type. The Kaiser Wilhelm canal was opened in 1895 by the German emperor. It is 64 miles long and has locks only at its extremities at Holtzeau and Brunsbuttel. The width is 197 feet. Its naval value to Germany is said to be equal to 15 men of war.

A German article describes a locomotive equipped with feed water heaters which has recently been put into service on the Egyptian state railways and effects a saving in coal consumption of 214 per cent or over $1,000 per year per engine.

The German scientist who predicts that in 300 years water will be worth 15 cents a drink simply expects bath tubs to go entirely out of fashion. At the very best they will be found only in the homes of "billionaires."

Mr. Riley M. Fletcher Berry, in his book "Fruit Recipes" (Doubleday, Page & Co.), says that fruit soups are usually served cold—where convenient chilled on ice—in very small china or glass bowls or bouillon cups. With this daintiness of service, however, it may be forgotten or not realized that such soups are not to the stomach mere empty introductory flourishes, whatever the intent. Fruit soups are foods, and as such are used in many countries by even the peasants though they may lack delicate table appointments. It is true that a fruit may be used which it is not of itself substantial (though the opposite may hold as with prunes) but the sago, arrowroot or tapioca used for thickening furnishes a certain amount of heat-producing material and where wine is added this is increased so it may readily be understood why when used in quantity such combinations may approach of themselves substantial meals or why even in small measure fruit soups with but slight additions of foods containing other balancing elements may arrive at the right to be chief dish of a luncheon or light supper.

As a general rule stewed fruit passed through a sieve may have added to it an equal quantity of water and to each pint a heaping tea spoonful of sago or arrowroot or a spoonful of sago arrowroot (for which cornstarch may be substituted) or tapioca. Some instruct to give the rule of a level tablespoonful of cornstarch to each pint of clear pressed fruit juice which however may be slightly diluted. The arrowroot or cornstarch is a quicker process and should be dissolved till smooth in a little cold water added when the fruit juice is at boiling point then cooked till clear meantime adding sugar and later a tablespoonful of lemon juice or wine. If sago or tapioca is used it must be cooked till thoroughly tender and translucent. As an example of a lighter fruit soup several recipes for fruit soups will be given in a column valuable to the housekeeper and also given.

THE HOT WATER BAG.

Simple Precautions That Will Preserve Its Usefulness.

Boiling water should never be put into a rubber bag. Do not much more than half fill the bag, then place it in the top hole of a rubber stopper and carefully press on the top.

This makes the bag softer so it is relieved of the pressure the steam makes it left in it.

After using the bag, drain out the water, let it hang up for a little while then tilt it down and with the mouth blow a little air into it just enough to keep the inside from coming together so it will often do if there is no air in it in which case the bag is almost sure to be ruined in pulling it apart.

If the bag ever should stick put into it some hot water with a few drops of ammonia. Rub it in a few minutes then with a thin cloth, I think you can get it to slide off easily.

Never fill a bag after it has once been used. A rubber bag is very useful.

Cure of Shoes.

An excellent preservative of shoe leather is a solution of a small quantity of tannin in water. As it is a disinfectant it will keep the shoes from becoming dirty and it will make them less liable to crack.

If worn shoes are cleaned and blackened and then rubbed with the tannin solution their appearance and wearing qualities will be much improved.

Have a box of oiled linen and when the shoes are taken off remove all mud and dirt with a brush then fill half full with oiled linen and stuff the shoes with it.

When necessary to wear the shoes empty them and they will be found to have kept their shape and will not be drawn if they were in the least damp when taken off.

Cleaning White Silk.

To wash white tiffers and other white silks proceed as follows:

Having made strong sud by boiling castile soap in soft water allow it to cool to about heat of 100 degrees and wash the silk in it by swirling it about and lightly pressing out the water with the hands.

Dip the cloth into sud of the same kind press the water out once more and hang in an airy sunless place until almost dry. Pulling out all wrinkles from care to time. Roll the silk carefully over a board and let it lie wrapped in a towel until there is only a trace of moisture left.

Smooth it under a fine white cloth with a moderately warm iron. If a clear tone of white is desired add blueing to the water. If an ivory shade is preferred use the clean ends.

Torn Wall Paper.

When a hole has been made in the wall paper in moving a piece of furniture if one has no paper like the one on the wall a judicious use of water colors will work wonders. The torn paper should be first straightened as nearly as possible and then smoothed down. Then touch up the vacant spaces and the scene with paints the color of the paper at that place says Home Chat. The black will be almost invisible if the water colors are used carefully. Tiny tubes of water color paints can be bought at any artists' supplies shop.

ROAD TO SUCCESS

PUBLICITY IS THE MAIL-ORDER MAN'S GREAT WEAPON.

MERCHANTS MUST ADVERTISE

"Fight Fire with Fire" and the Dollars Now Going Cityward Will Stay in the Home Community.

The merchant who would wage successful warfare against mail-order competition should study mail-order methods. The same tactics that takes the dollar out of the community will keep it at home.

And what are mail-order methods?

The keynote of it all may be found in the one word—publicity. The mail order house advertises. It does not advertise better goods at less money than the home merchant gives but it advertises persistently. It puts its proposition before the public constantly. It recognizes no dull season in its campaign for publicity. It never lets up.

At a gathering in Iowa some time ago a mail order man explained some of the system followed in the campaign of publicity. According to this explanation the mail order house seeks the line of least resistance in its search for business. Whenever they can find a town in which the merchants are not active advertisers they flood that community with their literature. When they find a town in which the furniture dealer for example is afraid to use printer's ink they pay particular attention to the subject of furniture. They are searching for the weakest link in the chain of home defenses.

Something of this is explained by

Intelligent advertising means the building the bulldog power and tenacity of the local press on the competition offered the home merchant by the catalogue houses. Intelligent advertising means the employment of mail-order methods in combating the the conditions the writer saw in a mill town in northern Wisconsin. The local paper carried practically no local advertising when the size of the town was considered and the stores of the town were but small affairs. In talking to one of the merchants he complained that more than $25,000 was sent from that community to the Chicago mail-order houses each month. That is easily twice the amount that is spent in all the stores in this town put together each month, he explained. Merchandising don't pay in such a place as this.

A few hours later the writer was talking with the publisher of the local paper and the conversation turned to local advertising or rather the lack of it.

I was very much tempted to accept a proposition which I received from one of the Chicago mail-order houses a few days ago, said the publisher. I still have the proposition here on my desk. They offer me a cash contract at my regular display rates for 1500 inches to be used during the year and in addition to the cash advertising they offer me a small commission on all the new business secured in this county during the life of the contract. They say their business in this county during the last 12 months was approximately $3,000 per month and I would secure a small percentage on all business done over this amount during the next 12 months.

Have you shown that proposition to the merchants of this town? I asked.

I have and it didn't move them. I repeated they simply say it don't pay to advertise. I would jump at the offer if it were not for the fact that I cannot bring myself to the point of going that which I know will help to kill this community.

There was an illustration of mail order methods. The wide awake mail order man proposed to reap a golden harvest from the field the very much asleep local merchant would not cultivate.

Does it pay to advertise?

The more than $200,000,000 that finds its way to the Chicago mail-order houses each year is garnered by a campaign of advertising. You, Mr. Local Merchant, claim, and rightly, that you can sell the same goods for the same, or less money than the mail-order houses offer, but at the same time you complain because the mail-order man gets the business.

Why do they get it? Because they advertise. They not only advertise, but they advertise in your field, and they advertise in your field because you do not. They select towns, or special lines where they do not have to meet the competition that is offered by local advertising and they make advertising pay.

We want the people to trade at home we want them to build up the home community. We want to see the dollars kept in circulation here that one and all of the local people may prosper. We do not want to see the fortunes of the city mail-order man built at the expense of the local community, but we know absolutely the value of publicity and we know the mail-order houses will capture the dollars if the local merchants will not fight fire with fire will not show the public what they can buy and at what price.

Let us go back to this northern Wisconsin town and see what opportunities the merchants there were sacrificing. It was a mill town and in no way an agricultural community. There were not 20 farms within a radius of as many miles. The industry was lumber and the money to run the mills came from the city. The nearly 1,000 employees were paid in city money and with a little effort on the part of the merchants in that town this money might have been kept in the town. It might have been made to build a permanent prosperity. But

STEAMER AND BARGE TO BE USED AIDING WRECKED BOATS.

Utter Failure Sometimes of Efforts From Land to Rescue Shipwrecked People Leads to Unique Scheme.

The noble work of the life savers along the sea coast is not to be discounted one whit, but often their superhuman efforts for the saving of life from some stranded vessel prove unavailing and it must be admitted that shore aid at its greatest efficiency is still inadequate. It remains therefore to discover some more certain means of reaching a wrecked vessel and taking off safely the human lives which may be thereon and this it is believed has been found in a scheme that has met the approval of the president and which is nothing more nor less than a life saving steamer and an ocean barge which is to be used in the work of rescue. Mr. John Arbuckle the coffee merchant has offered to furnish all the necessary wrecking boats and outfit free of expense to the government. The plan is to have two life saving vessels working in conjunction anchor on the ocean side of the wreck. Spray the water with oil fire a life line across the ship and take off the people in breeches buoy or by a flexible iron gangway that can be extended from the saving barge to the wreck so that passengers and crew may reach safety no matter how great the storm or high the surf or how far the wreck is from the shore.

Mr. Arbuckle called on President Roosevelt at the White House and showed him the drawing for rescuing people from wrecked vessels when it was impossible for the life saving corps to reach the wreck. He understood the plan in a moment and said it was a good thing. He will write the following letter introducing him to Representative Cooks who took him to the head of the life saving division.

My Dear Mr. Cook: I am very glad to hear of the plan for rescuing people from wrecked vessels. It is a very good thing. I will write the following letter introducing him to Representative Cooks who took him to the head of the life saving division.

POLAR PAINTINGS.

RUSSIAN ARTIST WHOSE WORK WAS DONE IN FROZEN NORTH

Most Remarkable Collection of Pictures of Arctic Region Coming to America for Display.

New York city and possibly other cities of this country may be afforded the privilege of seeing a collection of paintings, which have been painted in the arctic north in Vienna, Berlin, Paris and London where the collection now is on display and from which city it is expected they will cross the Atlantic to this country.

The theme of the paintings is the arctic north and the heroic Russian painter, Alexander Borissoff, succeeded in getting his remarkable scenes of the frozen north upon canvas.

Dwelling Place of the Samoyedes, Among Whom the Artist Lived Part of the Time.

was only after suffering great privations and hardships. It is the first time that the scenes of the far arctic regions have been painted right on the grounds and that is the remarkable feature of this collection of paintings and explains the striking effects which have been produced. Vienna saw the work of this painter of polar pictures and acknowledged that nothing of the kind had ever been seen there before. Paris stated as it is with exhibitions full under the charm of what was described as a new revelation in the art of painting and for a few weeks past London has been trooping to the Grafton galleries to admire the product of an artist treating of an almost unknown pictorial field.

Alexander Alexeyevitch Borissoff to live him his full name is a shy unsocial man full years of age of the true Russian type broad shouldered and somewhat stockily built with high cheek bones and eyes set far back beneath a massive forehead betokening imagination and intellect. From a cas-and hence nobody would suppose that this rather ordinary looking man had been through a life of adventure in a land of snow and ice and had brought back fixed upon canvas realistic reproductions of scenes in the far north, frozen north of which so many dandies explore have sought to penetrate the fittest and unveil the mystery.

Borissoff's pictures and studies have been painted in the arctic north beyond the seventeenth parallel of north latitude in the district between Archangel and the Yedda peninsula in the Gulf of Lapland of Novaya Zemlya between the Arctic ocean and the Kara sea. As one critic has said of them for the first time we see scenes and landscapes have been revealed to us the richness and variety of the aspects of the frozen world of the polar circle. There is a region which our human imagination has covered as with a breath of spirit tones the sensitive tints of Borissoff's delicate suggestions of light and shade between the appalling blackness of the chill abysses of the Arctic ocean and the dazzling radiance of the snow sheets as scarcely any master in chiaroscuro however favorable his opportunities has ever noted.

Two of the pictures belonging to the exhibition are on display at the Grafton galleries in London. One of them shows the almost fantastic lights and shadows of Novaya Zemlya under a cellophane white the other is a weirdly desolate scene on the same coast where after an exceptionally severe winter a number of poor hunters had perished. Recently the survivors of the little band had interred their comrades setting a rude cross over their resting places until the frost had perished and a solitary white fox surrounded by a few bleaching bones is the central figure in a haunting picture. From the French government comes a study of the Kara sea with its chill contrast of dark waters and towering icebergs. For the most part the pictures are small canvases depicting glaciers lecherous snowdrifts the beginning of a thaw insupportable coast scenes Samoyedes at home or with their boats and sledges reindeer dogs foxes and in deed something of all the conditions of life under such inhospitable surroundings. Every imaginable atmospheric effect is depicted from the wonderful glow of the midnight sun to raw blinding fog that can be well nigh felt.

The nine instruments seen here produce only two or three notes apiece. They are played by striking the frames in such a way as to slide the white shaped sections of bamboo back and forth over the openings in the horizontal bamboo pipe. The result is of course something very queer to western ears but really not unpleasant. Mr. James Rialton of Maplewood, N. ALCOHOL OF GARBAGE.

ROCKFORD PHYSICIAN CLAIMS IMPORTANT DISCOVERY

Makes Proposition to City Officials of Milwaukee to Take Charge of Plant—Says He Can Effect Great Saving

Milwaukee, Wis.—That denatured alcohol can be made from garbage and that an important industry is about to be created is the contention of Dr. W. A. Boyd of Rockford, Ill., who has made a proposition to Milwaukee to take charge of its garbage and to save the city $50,000 a year if it uses his method instead of the municipal plant that it now operates.

The city is paying at the rate of $189 a ton for burning the garbage and its plant is nearly a wreck. Dr. Boyd has offered to do the work at 9 cents a ton, a saving of $119 a ton and at the end of ten years to turn the plant over to the city free of charge.

Dr. Boyd says that experiments that he has carried on in Chicago convince him that even at his low figures he can make a good profit.

A number of cities in the country are now investigating Dr. Boyd's system and among them Milwaukee, Lancaster, Pa., and Union, N. J.

Milwaukee has had no end of trouble. The authorities originally estimated that its city plant would cost $50,000 but it cost over $100,000 before it was finished.

Then it was discovered that the plant had been built in a quicksand foundation and that it was in danger of sliding into the river. Then it was found that it could not be operated with as small a force as had been estimated. A much larger force had to be engaged and as a result the expense increased.

Then the machinery gave out and finally graft was discovered. Politics had crept into the plant and politicians used it as an easy berth for their friends.

One case was discovered in which a politician sold the garbage collectors old horses and wagons at exorbitant prices in consideration for getting them the positions. The collectors in turn went outside the city collected garbage at so much a barrel pocketed the fee and brought the stuff into the city to be burned at the city plant at city expense.

An investigation also showed that the coal bills at the plant were enormous and inquiry developed that the city was footing the fuel bills of a neighborhood that was using city coal to heat the homes. Finally the machinery gave out and the plant was closed. Just now the city is burying its garbage.

The proposition of the Rockford physician who was formerly health commissioner there seems to be a good way out of the dilemma and it is probable that his offer will be accepted. The council has written to a number of eastern cities and most of them favor reduction of a incineration. Dr. Boyd's health commissioner is opposed to reduction and for that reason the council is sent out a number of letters to eastern cities to secure information as to the best method. Dr. Boyd says that the possibilities from garbage are much more than most people believe. He says that fertilizer and grease alone make garbage profitable to handle but under the new ordinance the manufacture of a material alcohol will greatly reduce the cost of the disposal of refuse.

WON BY VOICE OF A GIRL

New York Man Weds a Lowell (Mass.) Telephone Operator

Lowell, Mass.—Falling in love with her voice which he heard over the wire and then with the girl herself, Donald W. Wurdwell of New York city is married to Florence M. In a pretty telephone operator of this city.

The wedding took place at the residence of Rev. A. St. John Chamberlain, pastor of St. Anne's Episcopal church. Many of their friends knew of it but the news quickly spread and when they took a train for Boston en route for New York 100 young women were at the station to live them a send-off. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Thomas Higgins of West Fourth street. Her father is dead. She has a brother, a teacher in the Philippine Islands. She herself is a graduate of the Lowell high school class of 1903. She has been in the local telephone exchange for three years.

GAIN IN POPULATION

CENSUS FIGURES SHOW MARVELOUS GROWTH IN SIX YEARS.

Nearly 8,000,000 More People in United States in 1906 Than in 1900—New York Still Largest City, Chicago Second.

Washington.—The population of continental United States according to the estimates of the census bureau was 83,941,510 in 1906. This is 7,946,975 more than the population in 1900. The estimated population of the United States including Alaska and insular possessions in 1906 was 93,182,240. The growth in population in continental United States from 1900 to 1906 was 1,367,715.

The population of continental United States in 1905 as obtained by adding to the returns of the states which took a census in that year the estimated population of the remaining states and territories is 82,575,191, an increase over 1900 of 6,579,610 or 87 per cent.

Computed on the basis of the estimate the density of population of continental United States in 1906 was 28 persons per square mile as compared with 26 in 1900.

Chicago remains the second city in the union in point of population. New York being first with 1,117,043. The figures for Chicago are 2,019,185. In 1900 it was 1,698,775. The gain in six years therefore is 320,410. New York is twice as large as Chicago. Six years ago its population was 660,811 so that its increase has been 458,272.

Philadelphia has 1,411,735 against 1,233,637 six years ago. St. Louis has passed Boston in the race the Missouri metropolis having 649,320 in 1900 and 5,238 in 1906. Six years ago Boston had 794,053 while in 1906 the bean cities city had 602,278. Illinois is the third state of the union in point of population. In 1906 the census bureau estimates that it was populated by 5,418,670 persons as against 4,815,010 in 1900. New York is leader with 8,226,990 then comes Pennsylvania with 6,928,575 Ohio 4,418,677 Indiana 2,710,598.

The rapid growth of urban population is noteworthy. The total estimated population of incorporated places having 5,000 or more inhabitants exclusive of San Francisco and Los Angeles Cal is 28,466,624 for 1906 an increase over 1900 of 3,912,158 or 15.5 per cent while the estimated population of the United States exclusive of these cities showed an increase of 4,450,003 or only 5.8 per cent.

The 58 cities with an estimated population of 50,000 or more in 1906 had a total estimated population of 17,771,167 an increase of 2,766,867 or 16.1 per cent over that reported at the twelfth census.

The states that took a census in 1900 are Florida Iowa Kansas Massachusetts Minnesota New Jersey New York North Dakota Oregon Rhode Island South Dakota Wisconsin and Wyoming. In Michigan the census is taken in the years ending with a 4.

The population returns for these states was 26,278,877 an increase since 1900 of 1,901,372 or 7.8 per cent. For the remaining states and territories the population for 1905 as determined by the method adopted by the bureau was 7,257,009 an increase over 1900 of 454,410 or 6.4 per cent. The population of the 11 states making an enumeration of 11 states making in the same manner would be 26,201,762 a difference of only 0.2 per cent from the actual returns.

PENSION TO POOR PARENTS

Ohio Official Proposes New Method of Preventing Child Labor

Columbus, O.—State Shop Inspector Morgan in his annual report submitted to the governor makes the novel proposition that the state of Ohio set aside a fund to be devoted to paying parents in poor circumstances who are now compelled to let their young children work in factories to enable them to take the children from the factories and put them in school.

Gov. Harris is inclined to look on the proposal with favor and may recommend a law to the legislature covering the matter.

Mr. Morgan says that Ohio leads all the states in child labor legislation but he is openly opposed to giving employers discretion to employ children where parents need their wages. Instead he suggests a school pension law by which the parents may be paid an equivalent sum out of the public treasury and the child sent to school.

MAKES HIMSELF AT HOME.

Burglar Breaks Into House, Bathes, Sleeps and Then Robs

Stamford, Conn.—After breaking into the home of two wealthy maiden sisters the Misses Frances and Corolla Smith and finding it untenanted a burglar calmly took a sleep in one of the rooms before selecting the articles which he wished to steal. He set the alarm clock for five o'clock. When he awoke he took a bath and a hearty breakfast and then commenced a leisurely inspection of the valuable articles in the house.

The Smith sisters are in the south, and when the caretaker found the broken window in the kitchen he ran to summon the police. While an officer was climbing through the broken window the burglar walked out of the front door with several hundred dollars worth of booty and escaped in the direction of Greenwich unseen by the officer.

RAISING CANARY BIRDS.

GERMANY CONTROLS WORLD'S MARKET OF SINGERS

Exceptionally Good Ones Command Fancy Prices—How the Young Are Trained—Are Very Sensitive to Drafts

Washington.—Writing from Malaga, Spain, Consul Frank S. Hannah says concerning the business of raising canary birds in the Canary mountains.

The breeding and selling of canary birds in Germany which has reached such proportions that it now controls the markets of the world is conservatively estimated of a value of $275,000. In St. Andrews alone 50,000 canaries are yearly raised for export. For an exceptionally good singer and breeder at least 300 marks ($71.40) must be paid and 100 marks ($23.80) is often paid for a good so-called "Vorsinger," a bird used to teach the younger canaries to sing by example. The normal price for good singers varies from $2.50 to $5.75. Absolute quiet and undisturbed intimate relations exist between the breeder and his birds. Similar conditions are attained by the Malaga breeders. Many of the so-called "Hartz canaries" which are exported to the United States are bred in the city of Malaga where some of the best singers are produced.

The training of the young birds to sing correctly is one of the most important and laborious features of the breeder's activity. The young birds learning by imitation for the most part acquire but singing as well as good and while it is the plan of the breeder that the birds should only hear the good singing of the "Vorsinger" some of them naturally chirp and whistle in an unpleasant manner and care must be taken that these birds be removed before the other birds have acquired the same bad habits and are rendered unsalable. The art of the breeder lies in being able to detect such disturbing talent in the bird at an early age developing the same to its highest point of perfection in its particular line. These birds are divided into classes and kept in separate rooms, those having harsh and shrill voices being often placed in covered cages where instead of singing they are forced to listen to other good singers. Through which their faults are often overcome. The better singers after passing a certain stage where their habits are established and they do not require the close daily watching of the breeder are taken into a room reserved for the best singers. The elementary training for the singer is generally finished by the end of November and the singing is at its best at the beginning of the year.

Through which their faults are often overcome. The better singers after passing a certain stage where their habits are established and they do not require the close daily watching of the breeder are taken into a room reserved for the best singers. The elementary training for the singer is generally finished by the end of November and the singing is at its best at the beginning of the year.

beginning of January and again after the mating time. Canaries are very sensitive to drafts and some singers, the results of years of careful breeding and training have been ruined by a few moments exposure by an open window.

The exports of canaries from this district for the calendar year 1905 was $27,685 and for the calendar year 1906 $40,048.

NEGROES AFRAID OF COMET.

Report in Indian Territory Towns That Earth's End Is Near

Muskogee, I. T.—The ignorant negroes throughout Indian territory are greatly excited by the reported approach of a destructive comet. In many places they have quit work and are assembling nightly in churches and holding religious services.

It is reported at Fort Gibson and at many other points along the Arkansas river where there are large negro settlements that the comet is the only thing talked about and the negroes believe that the world is coming to an end. This condition has reached such proportions that the Times Democrat, a local newspaper telegraphed Prof. P. J. See of Mare Island asking his opinion about the comet. His reply was:

The comet is a ghost of the air. It is going from the earth instead of toward it. There is no danger of contact.

A great many Indians have also become alarmed over the agitation but they are not demonstrative about it as are the negroes. At Westville it is reported that meetings are being held nightly and prayer offered. These reports come from the smaller towns and rural communities. There is not much excitement among the negroes of the larger town although it is understood that in nearly every church service Sunday reference was made to it.

Would Manage Whole Town.

Armour, S. D.—One man may run this town—not a political boss but a business manager. J. C. Cantonwine is with other taxpayers disgusted with the city debt and high assessments. He will put up a bond guaranteeing that if given the management of the city affairs he will demonstrate that a town and city can be run profitably when conducted along business lines.

Some of the aldermen look askance at the proposition but the taxpayers generally would like to try it. Armour has 2,000 inhabitants and is a thriving town but it has a bonded debt of $10,000 and city warrants have to be sold at a discount.

WATER CURE FOR THE INSANE

Innovation Will Be Introduced at Philadelphia Almshouse

Philadelphia.—Treatment of the insane by water with the idea of washing away insanity germs will be an innovation in the new quarters for the insane at the Philadelphia almshouse which will be opened soon. Dr. Copple, director of the department of health is confident of the success of the movement.

The plant is designed primarily for the treatment of cases of acute mania by a system of bathing by which the body of the patient is kept completely submerged in running water for as long a time as is deemed necessary to effect a cure. The plant in its present form is composed of a number of rooms of which two are specially set aside for this kind of treatment.

In each bathroom a hammock is arranged on which the patient's body rests. Above are hot and cold water faucets with a thermometer attached for gauging the temperature. There is a special appliance for emptying the tub instantly. The water generally is kept at a temperature of 100 degrees and is kept continually flowing.

The patient remains in the hammock for a period varying from four to eight hours at a time. At the end of each period he is taken from the bath and placed on a cot rubbed down, and allowed to rest for half an hour.

He then is returned to the swinging hammock and immersed in water. The only purpose for which he is taken from the water is an occasional rest. His meals are given to him in the bath.

The head which rests on a circular rubber cushion is the only portion of the body not submerged.

His Wooden Leg a Storeroom.

Contained Whisky, Money, Burglar Tools and Other Things

Philadelphia.—How a wooden leg for a long time enabled John Woods to lug cell locks to scorn and acquire a record as a jailbreaker was told in the city hall police court by Special Policeman Spencer. The leg did not figure as a factor in the prosecution Woods being held on the charge of stealing a ring belonging to John Gaylor of 2813 Agate street.

Spencer said that Woods was a Jeweler by trade. His wooden leg saved him until recently when the police found it was not only a means of locomotion but a storeroom for lock picks, false keys, liquor and money.

Twice Woods had snored his way out of cells in the Trenton avenue police station in a way that mystified the turnkeys and house sergeants. Spencer said: "Once Woods appeared sober he was placed in a cell. An hour later he was uproariously drunk. He was taken out of his cell and searched all but his wooden leg and then locked up again. Within another hour he was again detected cutting the lock from his cell door with a fine saw."

The wooden leg supplied the key to the mystery. It had been hollowed out and in this cavity were found a canteen of whisky, a roll of money, a set of fine saws and several keys.

After that Spencer said Woods was never locked in a cell until his false leg had been unstrapped and searched. The famous leg said Spencer who seemed to have its history at his tongue's end had also figured as a weapon in assaulting many a policeman.

Woods only smiled when Magistrate Hochreiter held him on the large charge.

To Work Sapphire Mines. Peapack is being made to work the sapphire mines at Yogo gulch extensively. Yogo dike which is in Montana is four miles long and it is estimated that the workable rock will approximate 10,000,000 cubic yards. While the stones found there are comparatively small they are unusually brilliant without flaws and of beautiful tints. Their shape is generally of such character that the cells or smaller ones are well suited for bearings of watches and for this purpose they need little cutting.

Notice of Sale.

Under and by virtue of an order made by the United States Court, in and for the Southern Judicial District of the Indian Territory, I will, on the 10th day of May, 1907, between the hours of twelve o'clock noon and two o'clock in the afternoon, at the door of the Court House of the United States Court at Ada, sell at public sale for not less than three-fourths of its appraised value, on a credit of three months, with bond from the purchaser, with good surety, to be approved by me, and a lien on the property for its price, the interest of Clarence Crummey, a minor, in and to the allotment of Tennie Crummey, deceased, consisting of the lands and premises, as follows to-wit: The north half of the northeast quarter and the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter and the southeast quarter of the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section thirty-one (31), township one (1) north, and range six (6) east, Chickasaw Nation, containing one hundred and seventy acres, more or less. The east half of the east half and the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of the northeast quarter of section thirty-two (32), township one (1) north, and range six (6) east, (Chickasaw Nation) of the Indian Base and Meridian, in Indian Territory, containing one hundred and seventy (170) acres, more or less. WILLIAM C. RANDOLPH, Curator of the estate of Clarence Crummey, a minor. Dated this 10th day of April, 1907. 21-d1t-w4t

A Great Telegraph School.

That Parsons has one of the best Telegraph Schools in the country is evidenced by the fact that railroad companies are seeking its graduates. During the past week this school had ten more calls for operators than it was able to fill at salaries ranging from $40.00 to $100.00 per month. The demand made upon this school is caused partly by the shortage of operators and partly because the students from the Parsons School of Telegraphy are qualified to hold positions as operators and are trained for regular railroad work. Young people if you wish to better your conditions it will pay you to correspond with this school and consider a course in telegraphy. It will pay large dividends on the investment. For full particulars address Parsons School of Telegraphy, Parsons, Kansas. 21-d3t-pd

Few Know This

A well-known specialist has stated that Kidney and Bladder Troubles of all kinds are in nearly every instance readily relieved by taking a few doses of the following simple home-made mixture: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. The dose is a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. These ingredients can be obtained at any good pharmacy, and are mixed by shaking well in a bottle. Victims of Kidney, Bladder and Urinary diseases of any kind should not hesitate to make this prescription up and try it. It comes highly recommended and doesn't cost much to prepare. If not troubled now, save this for future use.

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the commercial order of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusiness-like habit of overdrafts, grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

TWAIN'S FRIENDS WERE MANY.

Little Jean Thought He Had Almost Reached the Limit.

We had recently arrived in Berlin, and had begun housekeeping in a furnished apartment. One morning at breakfast a vast card arrived—an invitation. To be precise, it was a command from the emperor of Germany to come to dinner. During several months I had encountered socially, on the continent, men bearing lofty titles; and all this while Jean was becoming more and more impressed, and awed, and subdued, by these imposing events, for she had not been abroad before, and they were new to her—wonders out of dreamland turned into realities. The imperial card was passed from hand to hand, around the table, and examined with interest; when it reached Jean she exhibited excitement and emotion, but for a time was quite speechless; then she said: "Why, papa, if it keeps going on like this, pretty soon there won't be anybody for you to get acquainted with but God." It was not complimentary to think I was not acquainted in that quarter, but she was young, and the young jump to conclusions without reflection.—North American Review.

Borrowing Trouble

Now, the very worst things that might happen, you know.
Are the things that don't happen at all. We don't get and worry, lamenting and sorry.
In the grasp of expectancy's thrall. Apprehensive forebodings enumber our souls.
Depression weighs down like a pall. So we wear a long face with a very poor grace.
And then nothing happens at all. When we prophesy storms it is sure to clear off.
When our money's gone, something comes in—
And the thoughts of these bills which have given us chills.
Every month shouldn't make us grow thin—

For they fly down the past like the leaves on the blast.
We settle up, somehow, and why do we bother and fret over what we forget.
Before many days have passed by. We were not carried off by that terrible cough.
And in fact, 'twasn't much, come to think—
All our pains and our aches and our dreadful mistakes.
Why, they too have slid over the brink of the gulf that forgets; yet we still wile our hands.
Predicting some ruinous fall. Approaching disaster we had as our martyr—
And then nothing happens at all.

The Little Heroine who Saved Mamma

Mrs. William Johnson

Mount Holly, N. J.—Many a mother has saved her child from death. Here is a child who has saved her mother from death—death under the grinding wheels of a locomotive tearing along the rails at 60 miles an hour.

The child is 12-year-old Katie Johnson; the mother, Mrs. William Johnson. If it hadn't been for little Katie, Mrs. Johnson would be in her grave now and Katie a motherless little schoolgirl. But Katie kept her wits where another child might have lost them.

The train was the five o'clock mail from Philadelphia. It was behind time. The engineer was trying to catch up to his schedule, so he pulled the throttle out to the last notch. He took a chance on the curve near this city and was about to take the bridge at top speed when he was horrified to see a little girl standing on the tracks, not 200 yards away.

She was tearing along toward the on-coming train, waving something. It was red. The engineer knew.

Stopped Just in Time.
He threw over the throttle and jammed down the brakes—the child's signal meant danger. The heavy train came to a stop with such a shock that all the passengers were thrown from their seats in the coaches. The pilot of the locomotive wasn't 20 feet from the little girl when the wheels stopped grinding along the rails.

"What's the matter?" cried the engineer, jumping down from his seat in the cab, followed by his fireman.

The passengers piled out, too, curious to know. There in front of them stood a little girl, waving her red muffler still, right in the path of the giant locomotive that would have ground her to pieces had it gone two rods further.

"Quick, come quick!" she cried, for answer.

Then she started to run back over the tracks, followed by the train crew and scores of the passengers. When they got to the bridge they knew what the matter was.

Woman Caught Between Ties.
The on the bridge, which the train would have crossed in five seconds more, they found a woman, badly hurt. She had tried to walk across the bridge and had slipped, falling between the ties. There she was tightly wedged. Her head and shoulders protruded above the ties. Any locomotive that crossed would have decapitated her instantly. And she was so tightly stuck in between the ties that had any train passed over, there would have been no chance for escape.

It was Katie's mother.
"I fell," she gasped, "while Katie and I were crossing the bridge on the way to town. I was caught fast."
Gently the train hands and some of the passengers pulled Mrs. Johnson out of her perilous position. Then they found that her left leg had been fractured. She never could have helped herself; she would have been killed instantly.

The carriage was called and injured Mrs. Johnson was taken home, glad that she had suffered only a broken leg.

But after they got back to the cars the train hands began to tell stories of old railway men who had forgotten to wave anything red when to do it meant saving lives.

Katie is a slight child with flaxen hair, cold steady blue eyes, and clear waxen pink complexion. She has about her an air of one who thinks and acts quickly and with fearless resolution.

How Accident Occurred.
"We all had been to Philadelphia that day," said Mrs. Johnson. "I had with me a little four-year-old boy, Herbert Durand, and Katie. When we got back to Mount Holly I was pretty tired and thought I would walk home the shortest way. This led me over the bridge near the station. The children were ahead of me but a short distance, and we were getting over the bridge nicely. We walked on a plank that runs across the middle of the bridge. I was about half way across, I think, when my foot slipped off this plank and caused me to fall, knocking down little Herbert, and nearly rolling him into the creek. After I had put him on his feet I started to get up, and in doing so made a misstep that plunged both my feet and then my body between two ties, until only my head and shoulders were above the bridge."

"I saved myself from dropping into the creek below by spreading out my arms when I felt myself going down."

Child Thought Quickly.
"I screamed as I fell and this attracted the attention of Katie, who was a little distance ahead of me. She came running back and taking hold of one arm tried to help me up, but I could not lift myself enough to get out. While I was thinking what to do, whether I should drop into the creek below or try some other means of getting loose, I found Katie had left me and started for the station, for help."

"She had gone but a few steps when I heard a whistle, and saw Katie, white as a sheet, with big tears in her eyes, give one look at me and then turn about and fairly fly across the bridge up the track toward the train that was just visible around a curve."

"I could not understand what Katie intended to do to help me, but somehow I had absolute confidence that the child would save my life."

The Mother's Agony.
"Hardly had she gone off the bridge than she snatched from her neck a red muffler that she wore and waved it frantically at the engineer, at the same time planting herself in the middle of the track, apparently with the belief that if the flag did not stop the engine she would. When I saw this I looked at the engine for an instant, and not being able to see that the train was slowing down my blood turned hot and cold by turns, and I shut my eyes, determined that I would not move, for I knew that if the engine ran past Katie and her signal it meant that death had come to me."

"In that moment I lived over a good many years, before I realized that the train had stopped and I was being lifted from danger."

"I remember thinking of an accident which I saw several years ago on this very bridge, when an old man was killed there by a fast train. I remembered that his heart had fallen right near where I was standing, and that as I looked at it I could see it beat two or three times. The memory of this night came flashing over me as I waited for the train, and I think for a moment I must have fainted."

Realized Child's Bravery.
"I did not open my eyes until I heard Katie's voice at my side and felt the strong arms of the trainmen lifting me and carrying me to the station. And there I wept, I guess hysterically, for I then realized just how brave the muffled she never intended to get off the track until she had stopped the train."

All that Katie would say about her part in averting a tragedy was:
"You see, the engine had to stop, for I had a red signal. You know that always stops a train, and I waved it at the engineer because I didn't know anything else to do to make him stop. I couldn't lift mother out and so I just had to stop the train. I don't think there is anything funny in that."

"No, I wasn't afraid. What should I be afraid of? Didn't I have the red muffler? Don't trains always stop when the man at the flaghouse waves a red flag? Well, then, what should I be afraid of?"

That's the kind of a girl Katie is. She knew no fear. She had absolute confidence that the red flag controlled the motion of the wheels of the ponderous "iron horse" and made her mother's life perfectly safe.

EFFECT OF WOMEN VOTING.

British Writer Tells of Conditions in New Zealand.

"New Zealand was the first British colony to adopt women's suffrage—as far back as 1893," says a writer in the London Chronicle. "The New Zealand woman was given universal adult suffrage. Though she had not sought it, she immediately used it. Out of 170,000 women 109,000 had placed themselves on the register in a few months, and 90,000 voted in the general election of November, 1923. They voted peacefully and in order during the day while the men were at work, and left the booths to the men in the evening. They have voted with similar regularity and orderliness ever since. How do the women use their powers? Very calmly, by all accounts. Roughly, women make very much the same use of the franchise as men. The result has not produced either a new heaven or a new hell. Men have not been deprived of their rights. There has been no disorder or unseemly behavior—no strange revolution in dress or manners. Enfranchisement has led neither to divided households nor divided skirts. Families, as a matter of fact, generally vote on the same side. But on the other hand, there is a general agreement that family life has become brighter, that husbands and wives have more subjects in common to talk about, and that women are really setting themselves to study and watch public affairs."

"The effects, in fact, have been rather social than political. Women seem to be treated with more real respect—and not merely at election times. There has arisen between the sexes that sense of equality which is perhaps the only permanent and enduring social basis. Speaking generally, they have simply become citizens, whose part in public affairs is not sharply distinguished from that of men. Now Zealand women have simply stepped into equality. And 14 years of political life have shown them equal to that equality. Working side by side with man, woman still keeps her place—not like to like, but like in difference."

"The word pictures of which colonists used to have so many given them of domestic discord, of children forgotten, husbands uncared for, dinners uneaten, dress and appearances neglected—have already almost passed from memory. It is the commonest sight to see husband, wife and grown-up children walking or driving cheerfully to the polls together. The head of the family has become a more important factor in politics than of old."

The Horse Doctor.
Little Mattie flew into the house last evening very late for nursery tea, and hurried to her mother's chair. "Oh, mother," she cried, "don't scold me, for I've had such a disappointment! A horse fell down in the street and they said they were going to send for a horse doctor, so of course I had to stay. And after I waited and waited he came, and oh, mother, what do you think, it was only a man!"—Harper's.

Children Should Eat Fat.
Fat is essential to the proper growth of the tissues of the nerves and brain, and is peculiarly important to children, as the brain enlarges rapidly during childhood. Next to butter and cream, bacon is one of the most palatable forms in which it can be given. It should not be over-cooked, as then too much of the fat is fried out. Sometimes bread soaked in bacon fat will be eaten with relish.

Ventilation by Columns.
Ventilation through iron columns is an interesting feature of a mill at Preston, England. Air is drawn in at ground level, forced by fans through a water spray, heated by coils in the usual way and then distributed through ducts below the basement level to the different rooms, the iron columns having registers near their tops. Flues in the walls provide for the escape of air from these rooms.

PERIODICAL MADNESS

By ROBERT C. BROWN.

Homer Parker had never had an affair de coeur and the most singular thing about it was that Homer was 32 years old.

Love had always been somewhat of a joke to him. He had never looked the question fairly in the face and he laughed at the possibility of ever doing so.

"Love is a sort of periodical madness," he used to argue to himself. "They all get over it after a year or two and then they look sourly at the minister who was responsible for trying them up, or down, to love."

In other words, Parker was a cynic. He scoffed at love, made light of it, and boasted his impenetrability.

He was wedded to his art, and his art was music. There could never have been a better match, for Parker loved his music as himself.

One day the bachelor went to the phone to call up a friend. The line was busy, he listened a moment. Then he listened a little longer.

A sweet, mellow, musical voice floated over the wire. He had never before heard the like. The beauty, the fullness of that voice held him to the instrument.

"Surely," he thought, "the woman who possesses that voice must be different." And then he listened some more—the sweet voice thrilled him, filled him, and he could not get it out of his mind the whole day.

That night he patiently held the receiver to his ear for half an hour, hoping ever that the same voice would call again.

But his efforts were unrewarded and he went to bed, his brain pulsating with the discovery and his mind seeking for the owner of that voice.

The next morning he listened at the phone and again he heard the same tones. He stood entranced and listened. There was no other voice on earth like it, to Parker.

An all consuming desire came over him as he hung up the receiver. He determined to seek out and find that voice.

A small suspicion of love came into his mind, but he laughed it aside in his hurry to assure himself that it was solely in the interests of music that he wished to find the owner of that voice.

Hurriedly putting on his hat and coat he rushed to the telephone office. There he found the names and addresses of the three parties on his line and then he returned home eagerly. They were all on his street, that voice lived within a block of him and yet he did not know its owner.

The thought maddened him, he brooded over it, rushed to the phone in hope of again hearing it—but the line was silent.

Suddenly an idea came to him. He would call up each of the houses on that line and then he could easily locate the voice.

His first attempt was unsuccessful; he excused himself by saying that he had gotten the wrong number.

Then he called up the next on his list. A sudden thrill shot through him as he heard the soft "Hello" and realized that it was addressed to him. He said nothing, he had found it, and accordingly, he quietly hung up the receiver with a happy sigh.

"Miss Cornelia Courtland," he read from his list. "Well, that's funny, she can't live there alone, can she? But it relieves my mind on one score, anyway. She is not married."

Again putting on his hat and coat he went out into the street and sauntered past the house which contained that voice. Then he went into a corner store and waited.

Finally a woman came from the house. His eyes fairly devoured her as she came up the street. Her dress was smart, there was no jarring of colors in what she wore, there was an artistic air about her that was appealing. To Parker she was divine.

He stood awkwardly looking into a showcase when she entered the store.

"Good morning, Mrs. Kendall, how is your aunt, Miss Courtland, to-day?" inquired the affable proprietor of the store.

"Somewhat better, thank you," warbled that divine voice, which Parker recognized in a moment.

His head swam, his fingers grew cold. With a compressed feeling about his chest he strode out into the open air.

Madly he rushed to his room, packed up his belongings, and moved far away from that telephone line.

A month later he sighed, as he sat before his bachelor fire, musing to himself: "Love is a sort of periodical madness, they all get over it in a year or two. By George! I hope I do."

Just a Gentle Hint.
Chief Justice Fuller apparently wishes it to be known that he has no intention of resigning to make room for Mr. Taft. The chief justice recently gave a dinner, at which both the president and Mr. Taft were present. Mr. Fuller showed his guests a new portrait of himself and remarked that it made him look young. "Not a day younger than the original," said Mr. Taft, gracefully. "Thank you," said the justice, adding with what looked like just a trifle of emphasis: "I never felt better in my life."

Seamless Tubes for Boilers.
It is announced that a Scotch company is about to manufacture by a new process seamless iron and steel tubes for boilers, which it is said will not corrode.

King Edward a Pigeon-Fancier.
It may not be generally known that King Edward is fond of pigeon-racing, and has participated actively in it. His majesty has a big loft full of pigeons at Sandringham, where they are regularly and specially trained for long-distance races. Some years ago one of his birds won the biggest race of the year, the "Pigeon Derby." In a magnificent flight home from Llewellyn.

SLEEP BROKEN BY ITCHING.

Eczema Covered Whole Body for a Year—No Relief Until Cuticura Remedies Prove a Success.

"For a year I have had what they call eczema. I had an itching all over my body, and when I would retire for the night it would keep me awake half the night, and the more I would scratch, the more it would itch. I tried all kinds of remedies, but could get no relief."

"I used one cake of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura, and two vials of Cuticura Resolvent Pills, which cost me a dollar and twenty-five cents in all, and am very glad I tried them, for I was completely cured. Walter W. Pugh, 207 N. Robey St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 8 and 16, 1908."

Peers' Queer Privilege.

Two British peers, Lord Forester and Lord Kinsale, enjoy the curious privilege of being allowed to wear their hats in the presence of their sovereign. This quaint right, granted centuries ago, is only exercised on rare and entirely formal occasions.

HONEST MEDICINE

TRY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR STOMACH TROUBLE.

Convincing Evidence Supported by a Guarantee That Must Convince The Most Skeptical.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a doctor's prescription, used by an eminent practitioner, and for nearly a generation known as a reliable household remedy throughout the United States. Needless to say, no advertised medicine could retain popular favor for so long a period without having great merit and it is the invaluable curative properties of the pills that have made them a standard remedy in every civilized country in the world. Added to this is the absolute guarantee that the pills contain no harmful drug, opiate, narcotic or stimulant. A recent evidence of their efficacy is found in the statement of Mrs. N. B. Whitley, of Boxley, Ark., who says:

"I had suffered for a good many years from stomach trouble. For a long time I was subject to bad spells of faintness and lack of breath accompanied by an indescribable feeling. Whenever I was a little run-down or over-tired, these spells would come on. They occurred frequently but did not last very long."

"I was confined to my bed for ten weeks one time and the doctor pronounced my trouble chronic inflammation of the stomach and bowels. Since that time I have been subject to the fainting spells and at other times to fluttering of the heart and a feeling as though I was smothering. My general health was very bad and I was weak and trembling."

"I had seen Dr. Williams' Pink Pills mentioned in the newspapers and decided to try them. When I began taking the pills I was so run-down in strength that I could hardly do my housework. Now I could walk ten miles if necessary. Both my husband and myself thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the best medicine made and we always recommend the pills to our friends."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood and give strength and tone to every part of the body. They have cured serious disorders of the blood and nerves, such as rheumatism, sciatica, anemia, nervousness, headaches, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance and many forms of weakness in either sex. They are sold by all druggists or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.
